HAMOR LOCKWOOD (Limited).

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

The Consolidated Bank (Limited) will receive subscriptions for this company, which has been formed to acquire as going concerns, work, and extend the well-known business now being carried on by Mr. Hamor Lockwood, under the style of "H. Lockwood and Co.," as a tar distiller and manufacturer of the various products of coal tar known as benzole, naphtha, carbolic acid, creosote oil, anthracene, and pitch, and as a manufacturer of sulphuric acid and sulphate of ammonia, &c.; and also under the style of "Hamor Lockwood," as a contractor for all kinds of asphalte work and the manufacture of British rock asphalte (in connection with his patent system of waterproofing railway arches, &c.), and as a contractor for all kinds of cement and concrete work (with or without ironwork) for concrete fireproof buildings, floorings, pavings, tanks, cisterns, foundations, &c.

The business founded by the vendor about 20 years ago has steadily grown to its present large dimensions, and he is now converting the concern into a limited company in consequence of the business having become too large for himself, individually, to conduct.

The books and accounts have been examined by Mr. Frederick Gimblett, public accountant, of New Inn-chambers, London, and St. James's-square, Manchester, who certifies that the net profits earned in 1887 amounted to £3,756 3s. 3½d. During last year over £2,800 was spent in extensions and improvements. An addition to the plant has just been made for executing timber under pressure in preparation for wood block paving, a new branch which promises to be very profitable. As now completed, the plant (which is in perfect repair) can double the present turnover, and earn a net revenue of from £6,000 to £8,000 per annum.

The land, buildings, and plant (at Ashton New-road, Manchester, Minshull-street, Manchester, and Miles Platting, Manchester), &c., and the goodwill of the business have been valued by the well-known auctioneers and valuers, Messrs. Fred. Thompson and Son, of Manchester, and the assets to be acquired by the company represent a total of £60,537 10s. 10d.

The vendor will remain as managing director. All the works are in full going order, executing contracts, and are taken over with the experienced staff without any interruption. As the vendor accepts a large proportion of the purchase money in ordinary shares, the company will acquire a valuable property and expanding business on exceptionally favourable terms; and as it will be taken over as a going concern as from the 1st of January last, subject to the payment by the company to the vendor of a sum equal to half the net profits for the year 1888, dividends will at once accrue.

The price to be paid is £40,000, payable to £25,000 in cash, and the balance in fully paid-up ordinary shares. The vendor pays all preliminary expenses up to allotment, the usual brokerage excepted.

There are two contracts, dated October 9th, 1888, made between Hamor Lockwood, the vendor, of the one part, and Edwin Whitehead Marshall, on behalf of the company, of the other part, copies of which, with the memorandum and articles of association, and of the reports and valuations, may be seen at the company's offices or their solicitors.

There are numerous trade contracts on hand, agreements with employés, &c., as to which subscribers shall be deemed to have notice.

Prospectuses and forms of application for preference shares can be obtained from the company's bankers, brokers, solicitors, or auditors, or at the company's Manchester or London offices.

Manchester, October 17th, 1888.

HUMBOLDT ELECTRIC POWER and MINING COMPANY (Limited).—Incorporated under the Companies Acts, whereby the liability of the shareholders is limited to the amount of their shares.—Capital £82,500, in 82,500 shares of £1 each. 55,500 shares are offered for subscription. Payable 1s. on application; 1s. 6d. on allotment; balance in calls not exceeding 1s. per share, and at intervals of not less than three months. Payments will be extended over 15 months.

L. P. Allen, Esq., Crowborough, Sussex (late of 16, Cornhill, London, Banker).

Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited) being so largely interested, it has been decided that two additional directors shall be appointed by their Board.

Bankers—National Provincial Bank of England (Limited), London, E.C.

Solicitors—Messrs. Stretton, Hilliard, Dale, and Newman, 75 and 76, Cornhill, London, E.C.

Secretary—W. F. Gardner (pro tem.)

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This company has been formed to acquire from Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited) three mining claims, named "Humboldt," "Humboldt West," and "Curry" No. 1, situated in Aurora, Nevada, U.S.A.; also to acquire 11 other claims situated on Middle Hill, and known as the Durand Hill Mines, in the same district, and adjoining the Durand Mine, now being successfully worked.

HUMBOLDT GROUP OF MINES.

Development.

"Humboldt West."—On this property there are erected substantial hoisting works, and other buildings, consisting of carpenters' and smiths' shops, office, and store rooms. The hoisting works are equipped with hoisting engine, locomotive boiler, steel rope, cages, &c., capable of working the mine to a depth of about 1,200ft.

Considerable work has been done on the mine, and there is a double compartment shaft, 300ft. deep, with drifts and cross cuts at the 100ft. and 200ft. levels, and a west cross cut at the 300ft. From the upper levels there have been taken out in process of development by Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited) about 3,000 tons of ore, which have been crushed at the mill, yielding about $27,000, or $9 per ton. The developments so far show that the vein is of great extent, and there exists a solid ore body 35ft. in width. There are streaks of laminated quartz averaging about 2ft. wide on the east and west walls, of higher grade than the centre of the vein, but it is expected that the whole can be worked at a good profit in the mill now proposed to be erected, which will be of greater capacity, and with cheaper motive power than the Esmeralda mill. Crushing of this ore was discontinued, because the Esmeralda mill of 20 stamps is worked by steam—a somewhat expensive process. Their mill is now used for reducing ore of higher grade.

The "Humboldt" and "Curry" claims run parallel with the "Humboldt West," and on both there are large deposits of quartz showing the veins to be well defined, and in place. The "Humboldt" and "Humboldt West" are held on United States patents, and the "Curry" claim under the Local Mining Laws.

Mr. R. K. Colcord, Superintendent to Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited) reports that all machinery, &c., is in good order and ready to start on a few days' notice.

The above are the properties acquired from Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited).

DURAND HILL MINES.

The following are the 11 claims situated on Durand or Middle Hill, and fully described in a report by Mr. R. K. Colcord, Superintendent to the Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited), copy of which report is given in the prospectus: "Lewis No. 1," "Justice," "Lewis," "Santiago," "Keystone," "Gray Eagle," "Custer," "Bright Star," "Tenby," "Standish," "Galena." These claims have been surveyed by Mr. A. S. Garrard, U.S. Surveyor, and are held under Local Mining Laws.

PAYMENT.

The prices to be paid for the properties are as follows:

For the Humboldt Group of Mines, with all buildings and machinery, £15,000 in cash, and £15,000 in fully-paid shares.

For the Durand Hill Mines, named "Lewis No. 1," "Justice," "Lewis," "Santiago," "Keystone," "Gray Eagle," "Custer," "Bright Star," "Tenby," "Standish," "Galena," £7,500 in cash, and £12,500 in fully-paid shares.

After paying for the properties it is intended to expend the balance of the capital subscribed in the erection of a large mill with complete electric plant, keeping a good reserve for working expenses.

The transmission of water power by means of electricity has passed the experimental stage, and estimates from two firms for the erection of machinery guaranteed to develop at the mines 200-h.p. have been submitted to the company, but no contract has yet been entered into.

Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited) own certain water rights on East Walker river, and seven acres land on the banks. Sufficient water, estimated to develop 200-h.p. at the mills and mines, and such land as may be necessary in the erection of the required buildings, will be leased to this company for 21 years at a nominal rental, with right of renewal on reasonable terms.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

Six American gold mining companies in their reports show that by the use of water as a motive power they are mining and milling at the following cost: $1.70, $2.12, $2.40, $2.95, $1.35, $3.80, or an average of $2.75 per ton.

Cost of mining and milling estimated at an increase of $1.25—or, say, $4 per ton—and the yield at only $9 per ton, would give a profit of $5, or £1 per ton.

Capacity of a 40-stamp mill may be calculated at 40,000 tons per annum.

If the mill is used by this company for two-thirds of the year—or, say, crushed 25,000 tons—the profit may be estimated: 25,000 tons at £1 profit, £25,000.

These returns are equal to over 30 per cent. upon the capital of the company, but, in addition to this, there may be reckoned a considerable profit by supplying electric power to Consolidated Esmeralda, and by crushing ores for that company, and crushing other custom ores. It may also be reasonably expected that a large quantity of Humboldt and Durand Hill ores will yield from 1½ to 2oz. gold per ton, showing £5 or £6 per ton profit, instead of £1 as estimated.

The estimates above given are based on the crushing of 3,000 tons of Humboldt ore by Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited) which realised $27,000, about ½oz. gold per ton. It must be borne in mind that—as per Mr. R. K. Colcord's report—a considerable quantity of ore from the Durand Hill Mines has given 2oz. gold per ton, and the Durand Mine owned and worked by the Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited) has lately given 1,315 tons of ore, yielding 3,550oz. standard gold, or an average of nearly 3oz. per ton.

The leading features of the company are the smallness of the capital and the possession of properties having a proved value, with machinery suitable for treating large quantities of ore at the lowest possible cost.

The following contracts have been entered into—viz.: Two agreements dated respectively 1st November, 1888, between Consolidated Esmeralda (Limited), of the one part, and William Frederic Gardner, as trustee for and on behalf of the company, of the other part, as to the sale and purchase of properties and the leasing of water rights, &c.

An agreement dated 1st November, 1888, between Alfred Edward Ann, of the one part, and William Frederic Gardner, as trustee for and on behalf of the company, of the other part, as to the sale and purchase of properties and payment of preliminary expenses.

Copies of the memorandum and articles of association, the said agreements, and plans of the properties may be inspected by intending subscribers at the offices of the company.

Prospectuses and application forms may be obtained from the bankers, solicitors, and auditors.

All expenses connected with the formation of the company, including brokerage, up to allotment of shares, are limited to ½ per cent. on the capital.

As an evidence of the richness of Durand Hill, the "Durand Mine," one of the 35 mines owned by Consolidated Esmeralda, and situate on the same hill as 11 of the mines now acquired by this company, has given the following returns:

	Tons.	cwt.		Oz.
Sept., 1887, to April, 1888	17	15 ore, yielded	624	Standard gold valued at £3 17s. 6d. per oz.
April 3, 1888	203	14 ore, „	574
Aug. 27, 1888	462	0 ore, „	981
Oct. 6, 1888	279	0 ore, „	806
Oct. 19, 1888	353	0 ore, „	551

This mine has been opened to a depth of 325ft., and on October 30th the following cablegram was received: "Drift looking first-rate, the face being in ore 12in. wide, average assays 9oz. standard gold per ton. A first-class sample gave 132oz. per ton."

Application will be made to the London Stock Exchange for an official quotation.

TOWN OF JOHANNESBURG AND WITWATERSRAND GOLD FIELDS.

Exclusive of profits to be derived from mining, the directors are assured an income will be obtained from building and land leases.

Four gold reefs are proved to run through the property.

The plan of operations proposed by this company is in respect of Johannesburg precisely that of the London and South African Exploration Company in respect of Kimberley.

The latter company is, like this company, a body of mining proprietors and landlords of suburban property. Its 10s. shares are quoted over £17 each, and it has for the last three years paid dividends of over 180 per cent. per annum on its capital, a result stated in the directors' report, dated 16th May, 1887, to be mainly attributable to increase of ground rent and economy in the local administration.

THE BOOYSEN LAND and MINING COMPANY (Limited).—Incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Acts, 1862 to 1886.—Capital £120,000, in 120,000 shares of £1 each, of which 75,000 have been allotted as fully paid-up, in part payment of the purchase money; 15,000 were subscribed for in February last by the directors and their friends and the vendor company and its shareholders; and the remaining 30,000 are now offered for subscription at par.—ISSUE OF 30,000 SHARES.—Payable 2s. 6d. per share on application and 2s. 6d. on allotment. PROSPECTUS.

This company was formed in February last, to acquire and develop an extensive property comprising about 1,137 acres (including all water rights), locally known as "Booysen's Farm," also to work certain gold reefs on the same, and form sub-companies of claims as may be deemed advisable.

The property, being portions of the farms Turffontein and Vierfontein, adjoining "Paardekraal" on the west and "Langlaagte" on the north, is situated less than two miles from the centre of the now well-known town of Johannesburg, the mining capital of the Witwatersrand gold fields, Heidelberg district, Transvaal, South Africa, which have recently become so famous by reason of the richness of the gold reefs therein. It must become, according to Mr. Jones's report, the principal residential suburb of Johannesburg. The high road between the Cape Colony and Johannesburg runs through it, and the formation of the country prevents any other main road being made, except by a detour of many miles. On either side of this road, for some distance, sites for building purposes have been already leased on terms exceedingly favourable to the company, and all the land cannot fail to increase in value in proportion with the marvellous development of the town of Johannesburg itself.

The objects of the issue of the 15,000 shares in February last were (1) to get sufficient cash to obtain transfer of the property; (2) to purchase machinery, including a five-stamp battery by Messrs. Hornsby and Sons (Limited); and (3) to sink upon the reefs and obtain reserves of ore ready for crushing when the battery should be erected.

Since then the property has been duly transferred, the cash consideration paid, the machinery acquired and paid for, and the battery is in course of erection. Two shafts have been sunk upon the reefs, and reserves of ore are being obtained, and milling is expected to be commenced by December next.

It seems almost impossible to overstate the richness of some of the reefs in the Witwatersrand District. Some recent crushings of quartz are reported to have yielded at the rate of 9oz. of gold to the ton of ore, and the returns for the last three months have been most encouraging.

The recent advances in price of the shares of the Wemmer, Salisbury, Ferreira's, and other well-known Witwatersrand mines is evidence of the extraordinary gold-development above referred to.

Four Reefs are already proved to run through the Booysen property—viz., the "Kimberley," the "Yellow," the "Van Straat," and the "Red Reefs."

All these reefs run in a direction mainly E. and W., with a dip of about 35 deg. S., which is the angle at which most of the reefs dip in these gold fields. The reefs are formed of "quartz conglomerate," or "banket," so called from its resemblance to a sweetmeat bearing this name much in favour with the Dutch. It is a conglomerate, varying in colour from red to yellow, full of pebbles, and is easily worked. It will be observed that Mr. Jones, in his report, described the outcrops of these reefs as being from 1ft. to 4ft. wide. But, as is proved by the workings in the neighbouring property of the Isabel Company and elsewhere, these same reefs are found to be of immense bulk when further developed a little below the surface. The gold is believed to be "free," clean, and free from mineral coatings, such as oxide of iron; so that very little ought to be lost in the working.

Carriage.—One of the great advantages this property possesses is the facility with which machinery can be brought up by the Cape Railway system as far as Kimberley. Thence the road to the mines is entirely over an easy country, well grassed and watered.

Labour is obtainable at very cheap rates. Kaffirs are now being employed upon the property at wages of about 12s per week including food.

The water supply is abundant. A reservoir has been built which will furnish sufficient water for milling purposes at the outset; and the convergence of the land is such that, with the construction of dams, large quantities of water may be stored. There is also a strong perennial stream in another part of the estate.

With regard to the great abundance of water, the following extract from a letter lately received from the managing director, Mr. Murray, will speak for itself.

"I have asked you to sanction the building of a dam for reservoir. We are compelled upon the terms of sale of some plots to lay on water, and this dam is necessary. I shall try, however, to have it built by a company. That has occurred to me since I wrote to you, and I have consulted some of the best men here; they have gone over the property with me, and think the scheme is an exceedingly good one. Mr. Quinn, the managing director of Ferreira's Company, and who holds a very good position here, will consent to [illegible] company 'The Booysen Artificial Lake and Water Supply Company.' I am having a survey made of the valley, or rather vlei, by a competent engineer, [illegible] Mr. Knox. I shall not have these quantities in time for this mail, but by the next you will have the whole scheme. I propose that our company shall be paid in shares for granting the right of the construction of the reservoir, and we shall also have reserved for our use a certain quantity of water. The Water Supply Company will lay pipes so as to lead water to the houses on the estate, for which they will charge a rate. [illegible] I do not know what the capital should be, and of course can't make the estimate until all the figures are before me. We shall have no money to pay in the founding of a company to wonders or anybody else. We shall of course, as all the money will be for working capital [illegible] quoted on the Stock Exchange, and as the company is [illegible] the directors should have no difficulty in getting the necessary amount subscribed. I shall get, I believe, if the money market remains as active as now, a good subscription at Johannesburg alone."

Fuel.—Recent discoveries of large coal fields have been made near to Johannesburg.

Income.—A large income should be derived from the letting of "stands" or plots of land. These stands, some of which have already been disposed of, are let upon terms under which the company is entitled at the end of 10 years to have the ground valued and to charge, instead of the present rents, 6 per cent. per annum on the value of the ground, and at the end of 33 years land and buildings become the absolute property of the company.

Various Sources of Revenue.—It is evident, therefore, that, independently altogether of profits to be derived from gold mining, this company will also be able to look to large and increasing revenues, as a land company in possession of an extensive, rich estate, which must eventually become suburban property of very great value, the whole forming, as stated by Mr. E. Jones in his report, "a property unique on the Witwatersrand gold fields."

Special attention is being given to the increase of the company's land revenue. The spare land available for disposal in suburban building lots will day by day grow more and more valuable. But the best methods of disposal require careful consideration on the spot; and this matter is one to which the attention of the company's managing director is being directed.

A report has been furnished by Mr. Edward Jones, M. and C.E., who has personally visited and carefully inspected the property. The directors believe that Mr. Jones's personal knowledge and experience of the gold fields of the Transvaal is unequalled, and that the reports which he has from time to time furnished have been followed by results which testify to the soundness of his judgment. A copy of Mr. Jones's report is enclosed with the prospectus.

The following is an extract from the "Eastern Star," published in Johannesburg on the 2nd December, 1887, commenting on the value of this property as a residential suburb.

"The Booysen Estate is bound to become to this town what Wynberg and the villages in the suburbs are to Capetown. It is situated on the other side of the ridge, beyond Ferreira's township, and extends from the boundary of Johannesburg and Turffontein's [illegible] a distance of a mile and a half to the rise beyond the spruit, over which the road from Kimberley and the Free State runs. It consists of 1,200 acres of land, through which runs the spruit, always well supplied with water. It is a pleasant spot, and is bound to become a favourite place of residence as Johannesburg grows in importance. Already a large number of building sites have been leased, which bring in a considerable revenue. A well-kept hotel stands beside the road. . . . Quite recently a large tract was put up to auction by the owners of the hotel, and the [illegible] of Booysen's. Several residences are already erected, and building on some of the 200 allotments recently sold will soon be commenced. A piece of ground has been reserved for a public park. A large number of eligible suburban building sites have yet to be sold alongside the main road, and will be offered to the public as the demand for building sites increases. Some of these, as Johannesburg develops and extends, will no doubt become good business stands, as well as eligible sites for suburban residences. Beyond the hotel, on the rise above referred to, run the auriferous reefs known as the Yellow, the Van Straten, the Kimberley, and the Red Reef, all of which have been opened up and exposed by prospecting trenches, showing a good bulk of ore. Assays taken have given very cheering results. The Isabel Company's claim join the estate on the west, and the assays of quartz therefrom, from the reefs mentioned, were found to be so satisfactory that the Klein Paardekraal Company has taken over the Isabel Company, and a company of £75,000 has been formed [illegible] which, if not taken up by the public, will be subscribed privately. The Booysen Estate consists of two portions of the farms Vierfontein and Turffontein, one portion of which is already a proclaimed gold field. The low grade reefs which run through this property are certain at no distant date to command the attention of capitalists. Besides being of much greater bulk than the main reef, they run very even in their yield of gold, and the average return from them is expected to be greater than from the main reef. Very few of the existing companies crush from the main reef alone. The yields which have made many of them famous have been from the rich leaders which run beside the main reef; but they are so narrow that a great quantity of the barren reef has to be got out to get at it. This will not be so with these bulky reefs. Every ton of stuff got out is gold-producing, and with 50 or 50 stamp batteries, they can be made to pay handsome dividends, if it is believed, even at half-ounce yields. South of the Yellow Reef, another reef is said to have been discovered which runs remarkably well. This has been called the Black Reef. We have evidently not yet arrived at the end of our gold discoveries in this neighbourhood."

The price fixed by the vendors, the London and South African Prospecting, Mining, and Land Syndicate (Limited), to be paid for the property, together with the benefit of all existing contracts and inclusive of all assets, was £80,000, viz.: £5,000 cash and £75,000 in fully paid-up shares.

The following contracts have been made, viz.: A contract dated the 11th day of January, 1888, made between the London and South African Prospecting, Mining, and Land Syndicate (Limited) of the one part, and Henry Valentine Johnson, a trustee on behalf of the Booysen Land and Mining Company (Limited), of the other part, providing for the formation of the company and purchase of the property. An agreement dated the 10th day of September, 1887, made between J. G. Maynard, A. C. Baillie, and J. S. Harrison, as a committee of the Booysen Farm Syndicate, of the one part, and R. W. Murray, on behalf of the London and South African Prospecting, Mining, and Land Syndicate (Limited), of the other part. An agreement between the Booysen Farm Syndicate and R. W. Murray, on behalf of the London and South African Prospecting, Mining, and Land Syndicate (Limited), dated the 17th day of October, 1887; a letter from the said R. W. Murray to S. B. Height, dated the 20th day of September, 1887, and agreement dated the 23rd day of March, 1888, between the company, of the one part, and Charles Wallington, of the other part. And a circular letter dated the 10th day of February, 1888, from the London and South African Prospecting, Mining, and Land Syndicate (Limited), to the subscribers of the 15,000 shares issued in February last.

The vendor company, who are the promoters, will bear all the expenses of this issue of shares, and they reserve to themselves the right to contract with third parties for this purpose; and so far as may be, contracts may be made by the promoters in relation to this, as well as to any contracts by inadvertence unnoticed (if any), the applicants for shares shall be deemed to have waived any fuller compliance with Section 38 of the Companies Act, 1867.

Copies of the memorandum and articles of association of the company, and of the contracts and letters above-mentioned, may be inspected at the office of the company's solicitor.

Applications for shares should be made on the form accompanying the prospectus, and forwarded to the bankers of the company, together with the amount payable on application. If no allotment is made the deposit will be returned without deduction, and where the number of shares allotted is less than the number applied for, the surplus will be credited to the applicant in reduction of the amount payable on allotment.

Dated 2nd November, 1888.

MONEY MARKET.

SATURDAY EVENING.

Very few bills were offered for discount, and rates showed no change. But the quotation for the best three months' bills was firm at 3 per cent., chiefly in anticipation of a large efflux of gold from the Bank during the next fortnight, although, as stated this morning, about £150,000 will probably be soon received from Australia. Allowing for the net outflow to date since the last return, amounting to £373,000, it is estimated that the withdrawals from the Bank up to about the middle of November, including coin for Scotland, will reach over one million. At Buenos Ayres yesterday the premium on this metal rose to 89·85 per cent. The Paris exchange has also experienced an important decline. Under these circumstances, outside discount rates may shortly advance to about 3½ per cent. Meanwhile, money is superabundant, the supply being further increased to-day by the release of £600,000 from the Bank of England against Treasury drafts. Loans till Monday were offered at 1½, 2 per cent., and for a week at 2½. To cover the next Stock Exchange settlement, which does not begin till the 12th inst., the rate was not higher than 2½. On Monday an instalment is due on the bonds of the Entre Rios Railway Extensions, but the total is not more than about £200,000.

In the weekly return of the New York Associated Banks the specie has diminished £480,000, and the legal tenders have increased £40,000. The result is a reduction in the reserve of £440,000, to £21,840,000, and the surplus in excess of the legal minimum is £405,000 less, at £2,750,000. There has been a somewhat increased demand for money, but the addition to the loans and discounts is only £140,000.

The stock markets opened flat, business being generally checked by a dense fog. A better tone, however, was subsequently apparent, and the final quotations showed a recovery. Home railways were nearly all better on the day, the chief rise, about ½ per cent. each, being in Hull and Barnsley and East London. North British Deferred fell to 50¾ at one time, but closed at 51¼, or ⅛ higher than yesterday. North-Eastern, Caledonian, and Brighton "A" were also firmer. American lines relapsed, though, except Union Pacifics and Milwaukees, which declined 1 and ⅞ per cent. respectively, the changes did not exceed ½ to ⅝. Erie Second Mortgage and Denver Preference were in request. Grand Trunks scarcely moved, while Mexican (Vera Cruz) rose ½ to 1 per cent. On the other hand, Canadian Pacifics and Mexican Central bonds were rather lower. The principal feature in the miscellaneous section was the demand for the shares of the various nitrate companies, at an improvement. Salt Union and Guinness Ordinary exhibited flatness. Some of the foreign bonds were bought, including Mexican, Peruvian, Turkish, and Uruguayan; but Argentine Hard Dollars, Ecuador, Egyptian Unified, Greek, and Spanish gave way. Consols receded ⅛ per cent. for money, and Bank stock fell 1½ on the legal decision just notified. No important variation occurred in mines.

Sovereigns to the number of 440,000 have been taken by the steamer Hevelius, chiefly for Buenos Ayres.

Limited transactions were reported in bar silver at 43d per ounce, being without variation. The shipments of the white metal from New York for Europe during the week have amounted to only £23,600. This was a holiday in Bombay and Calcutta. Rupee Paper was steady, at 71½, ⅝ and 67¼, ⅜ for the Four and a Half and Four per Cents. respectively. A special allotment of Bills on Bombay, to the amount of £10,000, at 1s 4½d, has been made by the India Council.

German Bourses again receded, except for Prussian issues, which improved at Berlin. The Russian rouble fell nearly 1½. In Paris the tendency was better. Three per Cent. Rentes recovered 17½c, to 82f 57½c, and the Four and a Half per Cents. 30c, to 104f 55c. Rio Tinto, Crédit Foncier, Ottoman Bank, and Suez advanced, and Panama receded. The exchange on London (cheques) declined 2c, to 25f 29c.

As usual at the end of the month, money has been in better demand in Berlin, and the weekly return of the Imperial Bank of Germany exhibits an increase of £1,150,900 in the note circulation. Advances on stocks have augmented £874,400; other securities, £782,450; bills and public deposits, £288,500; sundry securities, £45,300; and notes of other banks, £18,400; but sundry debtors have diminished £12,050; Treasury Notes, £11,650; and sundry creditors, £5,800. Cash in hand is also £254,500 less. The clearing house figures for October amounted to £82,471,675.

Similar changes are observable in the weekly statement of the Austro-Hungarian Bank. Notes in circulation have augmented £1,694,600; other securities, £894,800; and advances, £480,600; but foreign bills show a reduction of £3,100. Silver reserve is larger by £38,400, and gold reserve is £2,000 less.

Money has been in active request in Brussels, and the alterations in the return of the National Bank of Belgium are more important than for a long time past. Other securities have increased £807,480; current accounts, £508,240; notes in circulation, £440,960; and coin and bullion, £122,840.

Subscriptions will be received for 30,000 shares of £1 each of the Booysen Land and Mining Company (Limited), an undertaking formed in February last to acquire and develop an extensive property, comprising 1,137 acres, in the Transvaal. The prospectus states that the property has since been duly transferred, the cash consideration paid, and the machinery acquired and settled for. In addition, two shafts have been sunk upon the reefs, reserves of ore are being obtained, and milling is expected to be commenced by December next. The list will be closed on or before Thursday, Nov. 8.

A new limited liability company has been launched, with a capital of £60,000, to acquire as going concerns the businesses of tar distiller, contractor for asphalte works, &c., carried on by Mr. Hamor Lockwood, at Miles Platting and Manchester. Applications are now invited for 6,000 Six per Cent. Preference Shares of £5 each. The list will be closed on Monday, Nov. 12.

Mr. Justice Chitty has appointed Mr. Henry Spain, of Coleman-street, receiver and manager of Pontifex and Wood (Limited), with power to continue the business, and with liberty to raise the necessary capital to carry on the works. Arrangements have been made to enable the trading to be continued in its various branches, including the extensive engineering and metallurgical works at Shoe-lane and Millwall. The services of Mr. Harry W. Neild and Mr. Walter S. Metzner have been retained in the departments hitherto under their management, and the undertaking will be carried on without interruption.

During the week the number of failures gazetted in England and Wales, according to Kemp's Mercantile Gazette, has been 94, of which 20 were in the grocery and provision trades, 11 in the building, 11 in the miscellaneous, 9 in the drapery, silk, and woollen, 6 in the corn, cattle, and seed, and 6 in the leather and coach trades. For the corresponding period of last year the total was 108, showing a decrease now of 14.

We are informed that the London and South African Exploration Company (Limited) has advice of remittances amounting to £7,500 for four weeks, making with £80,030 previously advised, a total for 44 weeks of £87,530, or, after allowing for drafts on account of rates for the year (£6,950), a net sum of £80,580.

According to advices received by the Gordon Diamond Company (Limited) from their secretary, the quality of the blue ground owned by the undertaking is equal to any in the Kimberley mines. From information received up to Nov. 1, both by letter and cable, the directors are advised that there is a stock of about 150,000 loads of blue on the floors. Under these circumstances the board expect to be able to declare at the end of next month an interim dividend at the rate of 10 per ct. per annum. Prices obtained by the sale of diamonds have been very satisfactory, the two last parcels of "pickings" having been disposed of as follows. One lot, weighing 484 carats, realised in Kimberley an average of 64s per carat, and the other lot of 650 carats was sold in London last month at 47s 7d per carat.

Interest coupons of the Mexican General Land, Mortgage, and Investment Company's Seven, Six, Five and a Half, and Five per Ct. Debentures, due Nov. 11, will be payable at the Royal Bank of Scotland on and after that day.

With regard to the Submarine Cables Trust, notice is given that the balance of 10s outstanding on the coupons, due April 15 last, will be paid on and after Nov. 15 by Messrs. Glyn, Mills, and Co., of Lombard-street. It is estimated that the trustees will, on April 15 next, have sufficient money in hand to pay the whole or greater part of the £3 due on the October coupons.

From the report of the Provincial Tramways Company (Limited) it appears that the revenue account, after payment of debenture interest and 6 per ct. on the Preference shares, besides appropriating £1,500 to Cardiff reconstruction, shows a balance of £8,363, out of which the directors recommend the payment of a dividend on the Ordinary of 6s per share, being at the rate of 3 per ct. per annum. The sum left to be carried forward is £903.

The Ooregum Gold Mining Company of India (Limited) have received a telegram, dated Nov. 2, giving last month's return of gold as follows: "316 tons of quartz produced 605 ounces of gold." The agent adds: "Mill shut down owing to accident to boiler Monday. Resume work on Nov. 3."

It is notified by the Day Dawn Block and Wyndham Gold Mining Company (Limited) that the result of the crushing for the fortnight ending Oct. 27 is as follows: "475 tons crushed; yield of gold 601 ounces; approximate value £2,100; fortnight's expenses £1,525." The cable was delayed through incorrect transmission.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing.—Only in boxes 7½d., and tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "James Epps and Co., Homœopathic Chemists." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co. are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent;" and Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit in almost all forms of throat disease."—[ADVT.]

AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK.

Copious rains were very generally experienced last week, which have saturated the soil and brought it into excellent condition for wheat-sowing—an operation which had been delayed in many districts on account of the land being too dry. Fortunately, too, the showers have proved warm and summerlike, quite the reverse of what October rains usually are, and the present week has commenced fine enough to make us hope that what is termed a St. Martin's summer will fall to our lot this year. If so, late-sown turnips and swedes intended to stand on the land for the winter will reap great benefit. They have been brought into vigorous growth by the recent warm rains, and there is yet ample time for them to make an abundant yield under favourable circumstances.

The winter session of the Agricultural Societies commences with the present week, and while the Farmers Club will reassemble this afternoon at the Salisbury Hotel, the Central Chamber of Agriculture will meet to-morrow morning at the rooms of the Society of Arts, Adelphi, the council of the Royal Agricultural Society, at Hanover-square, Wednesday, and the respective councils of the Smithfield Club, Shorthorn Society, and various other agricultural associations, either on the same day or Thursday. The Farmers Club may be congratulated on the subject it has selected for discussion this afternoon, inasmuch as a more appropriate one could scarcely have been chosen in harmony with the exigencies and requirements of the present time. British agriculture, according to some, is slowly reviving from an unusually protracted condition of depression, and what is to make its revival permanent and real instead of illusory and transitory but more cultivation of green crops and greater dependence on live stock? The paper to be read this afternoon will be on "catch crops," by Mr. Bernard Dyer, a professional agricultural chemist, and this term, although perfectly well-known in most rural districts, may require explanation to town readers. It means taking an extra crop, not out of season, but in the intervals between harvesting one kind of produce and seeding for that which in the regular order of the system commonly observed would come next. Thus, when the four-course rotation is pursued, there is ample time to take an extra crop between wheat and turnips or swedes throughout the southern half of the kingdom. Even if wheat be harvested so late as September rye, vetches, winter oats, or bere can be put in to yield green fodder for cutting or feeding off in the months of April, May, and June—usually long before farmers in general require to sow for their swede, much more common turnip crops. Trifolium is another valuable green fodder crop, the seed of which if sown on a wheat stubble immediately after harvest, and the hard stubble surface being merely scratched by a light pair of harrows afterwards, a great many tons of green food may be grown and utilised previously to the ordinary turnip-sowing period coming round. These crops are of greater value than ever now that we have the ensilage system. They were previously limited in area to the quantities of green fodder the farmer could consume by his sheep and horses in the spring and early summer months. A few enthusiasts might, perhaps, have gone further and fed nearly the whole of the live stock on the farm with the produce of such catch crops during the months of May and June, but, on the other hand, there have always been a great many others who have harboured prejudices against such fast cropping, and it has not been uncommon to find on the farms of such only a few acres of vetches grown to have something green to give the working horses when resting in their stables. If the ensilage system be adopted, not a single acre of the stubble land need of necessity lie fallow in winter when swedes or common turnips are intended to follow, and it stands to reason that if the land were made to produce two crops instead of one crop in the year there must be a great gain, provided only heavy yielding produce could in all cases be relied on.

Probably on this point the discussion this afternoon will turn. There has been in the past an erroneous opinion very prevalent in the agricultural mind that these catch crops that are seeded for in autumn, and utilised in the ensuing spring or summer, must take a great deal out of the soil. Mr. Bernard Dyer will tell his audience otherwise, and consequently it is perhaps fortunate that the paper will be read by a scientific man instead of by a practical farmer. He will point out that the greater part of any green crop when fit to cut, to the extent of from 80 to 90 per cent. of its weight, consists of water, and that the remaining dry matter consists chiefly of carbonaceous material derived from the air. A great many chemists, and Mr. Dyer among them, are inclined to believe that leguminous plants derive more of the nitrogen required for their structures from the air than from the soil, and if the plants are not leguminous they take up by their roots nitrates, which, if the land were in a state of fallow, would be washed away by rains and become lost. As to fertility exhaustion, therefore, it becomes a matter of doubt whether the chief drain on the soil by growing these catch crops for utilisation while in green condition be not confined to the minerals they abstract—chiefly phosphates and potash; lime usually being in ample store on most soils under cultivation. The drain on minerals in the soil is not great when green crops are cut before they form their seeds, much less if harvested before the blossoming stage. There is another point also which should not be lost sight of. Nature does her best to keep up continuous cropping, whether the farmer desires it or not. Her abhorrence of a bare fallow is such that she will cause the land to bear a crop of weeds if he does not grow something more valuable. Thus it is not uncommon to see on the lands of the very men most opposed to catch crops a luxuriant covering of coarse wild grasses and weeds in April and May, occasioning great labour to the teams to get rid of. Taking everything into consideration, making the most of the resources of the land in this way, by causing much larger flocks of sheep and herds of cattle to be kept, would be calculated to add greatly to the fertility of the soils instead of diminishing it.

The chief subject to be discussed to-morrow at the meeting of the Central Chamber of Agriculture is the Government measure for the creation of a Board of Agriculture, with a Cabinet Minister at its head. Several of the local chambers have been discussing it during the past week, and it is easy to foregather that the Government will be urged to press the measure forward. A few objections that have been raised against it are not of a vital character, but such as deal with details. A letter of Mr. Jacob Wilson has been extensively circulated replying to Mr. Heneage's strictures on the bill. Mr. Wilson, while admitting that there should be a reconstruction of Government offices in the interests of economy, argues that Mr. Heneage's proposal is inopportune, as it would be likely to occasion delay. The Hon. James Lowther, at one of the Yorkshire chambers, has, however, supported Mr. Heneage's view by the plea that a first-class statesman will not probably take a Cabinet office with a salary of £2,000 per annum, whereas if agriculture and trade were combined, and the salary made £5,000 per year, it might be worth the acceptance of almost any one. The most material of the points urged by Mr. Heneage will, however, probably be considered to be the economical one. He has stated that a new Cabinet officer, with a salary, should not be appointed without abolishing one of the older ones which have no duties, causing the emolument to be virtually a sinecure. The second subject to be discussed by the Central Chamber will be to consider whether action should be taken in support of the Excise Duties (Local Purposes) Bill. A rumour appears to have gained extensive circulation that Mr. Goschen is about to withdraw the van and wheel tax altogether, and, as may be supposed, great disappointment has been expressed thereat in most of the discussions on the question which have taken place at local chambers recently. The Severn Valley Farmers' Club held its annual show and dinner on Tuesday, at which speeches were made by Mr. Staveley Hill, M.P., and Mr Jasper More, M.P. The former said he regarded the wheel and van tax as just and equitable. Under the old turnpike system those who used the roads paid for their maintenance, but since then the bulk of the cost had fallen upon the land. The proposed tax would be a return to the old principle, and it could not be said to be one on locomotion, for the heaviest tax on locomotion was bad roads.

On Thursday last an important sale of pedigree pigs belonging to Mr. Benjafield took place at Motcombe, Dorset. They were of the Improved Berkshire breed, and one sow, called Lady Colin B., realised 29 guineas, and another, called Bernese, with her eight young ones, sold for £35 15s. Others realised 15½ guineas and 15 guineas, and several sold from 8 guineas to 10 guineas, the general average for the big and small being £5 11s.

The Agricultural Department has just issued a leaflet on the hop crop of 1888, by which it appears that the land under hops was 58,490 acres; but it is estimated that the average yield per acre has been only 4·81cwt, which would give an estimated total produce of 281,291cwt. The most singular feature in the table is the variation of the crop in different counties, Sussex yielding the highest average of 6·91cwt, that of Kent being only 4·63cwt, and that of Worcester 3·89.

Mr. J. Blundell Maple, M.P., will open the annual show of the Surrey Chrysanthemum Society at the Peckham Public Hall this afternoon.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

NOTES AND ANTICIPATIONS.

Many important stakes were closed last week, and amongst them the Middle Park Plate and the Dewhurst Plate for next year, and the Two Thousand and One Thousand for the following year. In each instance liberal patronage has been obtained, and little fear exists at present of these well-established and historical prizes losing hold with the best supporters of the turf. The Prince of Wales heads the list of subscribers to the '90 Two Thousand, his selection being Gallifet, an Energy colt, bought as a foal at the break-up of the late Lord Wolverton's stud. A brace of colts, bred in Australia, are entered by Mr. James White, and the new nominators for the first of the principal series of three-year-old contests also include Lord Dudley, Lord Dunraven, Mr. H. M'Calmont, Mr. W. Low, and Mr. Warren de la Rue. Although the last-named gentleman has so far enjoyed a singular run of bad luck, his turn in the wheel of fortune must come sooner or later, as, apart from being possessed of two very useful handicap horses in Shillelagh and Trayles, his youngsters have been purchased regardless of price. Lord Dudley and Mr. W. Low have likewise figured amongst the most conspicuous bidders for yearling stock, added to which both of these comparatively new additions to the ranks of owners of horses intend to form breeding studs, and it was with this object in view that Mr. Low secured Braw Lass after her Newmarket defeat of Fullerton. The Middle Park Plate and the Dewhurst Plate of next year show considerable numerical improvement upon the corresponding races that recently fell to the share of Donovan, and foreign aid has been given to both by M. Aumont, M. E. Blanc, and Mr. H. Jennings. Some two-year-old stakes to be run at Newmarket in the spring make a good paper show, a notable instance being the Exning Plate, and in the last days of October the Cheveley Stakes comes out strong. At Ascot next year the Thirty-Second Biennial and the New Stakes keep up the high standard of the Royal heath, and there is a very attractive entry for the Hardwicke Stakes, twelve months further on. The inclusion in the list of names of Satiety and Crowberry, who will then be five-year-olds, indicates that their retirement since the summer should not be accepted as final, and they are kept in company by the unfortunate second in the St. Leger, Chillington, and Sheen. A senior to them crops up in Exmoor, and the pick of the batch that will then be four-year-olds are Chitabob, El Dorado, and Laureate. To refer back for a moment to Newmarket, Satiety is to be found in the Great Challenge Stakes at the Second October Meeting, associated with Seabreeze, others of the same age being Crowberry and Noble Chieftain; and of the following year, Amphion, Gagoul, and Napoleon, stand out prominently. At Goodwood the Prince of Wales's Stakes, which claimed fifteen subscribers this year and has thirteen next year, drops down to only half a dozen in 1890; but, after all, it was an expensive affair, with no forfeit attached to a £200 subscription, and the decadence has not extended further, the Levant Stakes and the Molecomb Stakes being, in fact, on the mend.

The weather proved much more of a drawback last week in the south than in the north, and when at Lewes, on Thursday afternoon, the rain and hill mists were contending for mastery, sunshine prevailed at Lincoln. The meeting in the fen district was certainly the best of the week, and the winner of the Great Tom Stakes, Tyrone, doubtless accomplished a very fair performance, as of the unplaced division, The Rejected, Felix, and Arundel had been running well of late, and were much fancied in the bargain. The greatest surprise of the Carholme was when Marcus finished absolutely last, on Friday, for the Blankney Stakes, and in no other way can I account for his collapse than the change of ground from the previous week at Newmarket. His second to Antibes in the Free Handicap, beating Duncraggan, Minthe, and Royal Star, made him appear a paper certainty, and there was every justification beforehand for the laying of odds, even in a field of ten. The successful candidate, Rookdale, is one of the first of Southampton's produce, and, as some of the yearlings begotten by this Hermit horse were much admired at Doncaster, he may make a name at the stud. Luciennes ceased to be a maiden three-year-old when she carried off the Lincoln Autumn Handicap, and as her victory seems to have been accomplished in easy fashion, the runner up, Frank, can hardly claim even an outside chance for the Liverpool Cup. The position occupied by Love-in-Idleness in the Great Tom Stakes points on the other hand to Acme, as she was in receipt of 17lb from him, when an interval of four or five lengths divided them in the Free Handicap for three-year-olds two days after the Cambridgeshire. So far, however, there is no direct encouragement to back Lord Lurgan's colt, and it may be that, owing to the unparalleled weakness of the market, many owners who have representatives in the Liverpool Cup are holding back. Yet there was apparently all the material for a good betting race when the acceptances were published, as it was a simple task to pick out six or seven that promised to become strongly fancied candidates. One of them, Cactus, was nevertheless scratched very unexpectedly, and the lack of opportunity may have alone saved a large body of backers from burning their fingers, the Cambridgeshire exhibition of Mr. Boyd's four-year-old having made him a popular fancy. The programme issued for the four afternoons to be spent at Aintree, contains several big cards, apart from the Cup, and, as usual, the help of the Grand National Hunt has been invoked with the November Hurdle Handicap on the first day and steeplechases on each of the other three. These jumping affairs are bound to attract Irish competition, and it will be contrary to the general experience if one or two prizes do not cross the St. George's Channel. An old "stager" from the Emerald Isle, Spahi, is included in the November Hurdle Handicap on Tuesday, supported by Campanula, Dictator, Queen of the May, and Angela. Of these DICTATOR has been showing good form of late at the Curragh, and if not in reserve for the Sefton Steeplechase will be about winning. In his absence I should lean towards SPAHI, as Wrangler, who was sold under the hammer the week before last for 700 guineas, has plenty of weight to carry. Neither Laureate nor Paloma will run for the Knowsley Nursery, and this sets George Barrett at liberty to ride Theophilus, who is not called upon to allow Laureate a single ounce for the head beating at Sandown Park. He must play a bold part with his fine turn of speed, and of those handicapped round about him Master Bill, Ixia, and Workington are a useful trio. In the middle of the handicap I am inclined to the chances of Hortense, Houndsditch, D'Orsay; and the pick of the light weights may be found in Baffas, the Lady Lucas colt, and The Kelpie. To-morrow night the arrival list will guide me in sorting these out, and for the time being THEOPHILUS must stand alone. In the Croxteth Cup DOG ROSE, POWDER PUFF, and PET FOX may have to be reckoned with if their numbers are hoisted; and, as Fullerton is certain to forego the Duchy Cup in view of the more important engagement on Thursday, the Irish form of PERICLES may be found good enough. JACK O'LANTERN, Upstart, and the Chaplet colt are capable of giving the weight away to the others in the County Stand Plate, and of the trio I should own preference for the first-named. On Wednesday Roquefort, now the property of Mr. Abington, heads the list for the Sefton Steeplechase, and, when caught in a generous mood, he is a good horse. The best form of Savoyard has been exhibited at Aintree, and he certainly seemed to have the cross-country "blue riband" well won when he came to grief last spring two fences from home. Still, at this early stage of the jumping campaign fitness is the chief consideration, and in the belief that MAGIC will be found all right on that score, I am induced to couple him with DICTATOR. The Stewards' Cup will be much influenced by the Croxteth Cup of the first day, well as Juggler, Sandal, and Ice may acquit themselves under any circumstances, and before the hour of battle intermediate running may speak upon the Liverpool Nursery, for which at this date I should recommend D'ORSAY, IDDESLEIGH, and STANLEY. No possibility exists of Seabreeze entering the lists for the Bickerstaffe Stakes, and with APOLLO taking a 7lb allowance, he ought to beat Zanzibar (who is penalised that amount) and win.

The scratchings for the Liverpool Cup have extended from Silkminster and Cactus to Theodore, leaving a lot of twenty-one from which the field can be chosen on Thursday afternoon. Of those Reve d'Or, Zanzibar, Eiridspord, Stourhead, Benburb, and Latania are stable companions, and, independent of the fact that Reve d'Or is virtually put out of court by her Jockey Club Cup penalty, and that Eiridspord looked a very harmless article when in the sale paddock at Newmarket, not the least disposition is evinced to back anything trained at Manton. Fullerton will, of course, be ridden by Watts, and whereas he was out of sorts on the opening day of the Cesarewitch week, he has the credit of having run fairly well in the Cambridgeshire, and the next day would have beaten Braw Lass in another stride for the All Aged Stakes, with Paloma and Link Boy behind the pair. He meets Bismarck upon 9lb different terms than in the Cambridgeshire, and if he should fail to play a bold part—which I do not suspect—the heavy ground rather than the length of the journey will be against him. The mile and three furlongs at Liverpool is one of the easiest tracks in the kingdom, and on that account, after seeing him get home third in the Cambridgeshire, it would be bad judgment to deny the claims of Bismarck. Still Belle Mahone was too near him for the form to look so very good, and time will prove that half of the field could not act on the iron ground at Newmarket. The new owner of Bismarck has secured the services of George Barrett, and on the score of jockeyship nothing will be wanted. Ashplant, who has led a life of retirement from public work since he finished second to Satiety in the Summer Cup, is very dangerous viewed on that running, as Lord Calthorpe's colt was then in brilliant form, and perhaps had no superior of his age in training from a mile to a mile and a half. Acme was doubtless somewhat sore after his two severe races at the Newmarket Houghton, and during the early part of last week he took things quietly. For all that three or four sharp gallops would be quite sufficient to put him in trim; and, bearing in mind the amount of weight he tried to give Sheen in the Free Handicap, and the superiority he betrayed to Love-in-Idleness, I shall expect him, if a starter, to acquit himself creditably. Candlemas appears to have no chance upon Cambridgeshire form, difficult as it is to consider him so moderate, and the latest tone of the market would suggest that the early traders upon Trayles should have given their allegiance instead to Danbydale, who was always in the first flight for three-fourths of the Cambridgeshire journey. My opinion is unaltered, however, that Trayles will in his turn take a big handicap, and either the hostile movement of Saturday will be reversed or Danbydale may shorten in price during the next twenty-four hours. The scratching of Cactus has called attention to Sorrento, from the same stable, and a genuine outsider is Lady Rosebery, who can hardly claim the same paper chance, however, as the hard-working Tommy Tittlemouse, supposing we accept the Edinburgh race between the pair. The unsettled state of the market warns me of the danger of trusting to a definite selection, and in the belief that Bismarck will again fail to quite stay home, I shall await the course of events before choosing between Fullerton, Ashplant, Acme, and Trayles or Danbydale. The pair that I should like to pledge myself to are ACME and TRAYLES. With all her weight, MISS ETHEL must as nearly as possible secure the Downes Nursery, and the best claim in the Aintree Hunt Steeplechase are GLENTHORPE, BATTLE ROYAL, and HIGH ART. Pending the engagement of Apollo and Zanzibar in the Bickerstaffe Stakes, it is only necessary to mention that Toscano and Nether Avon may oppose them in the Liverpool St. Leger on Friday, when THE FAWN looks a good thing for the Fourth Hapsburg Steeplechase, and KING MONMOUTH and SHILLELAGH may acquit themselves with credit in the Great Lancashire Handicap.

The week ends on Saturday at Alexandra Park, where APPENZELL or WANDERER may win the Corinthian Welter Handicap, PARGA or CHILPERIC the Alexandra Handicap, and LUCY LONG the Totteridge Nursery.

Sunday Night. HOTSPUR.

LONDON BETTING—SATURDAY.

The speculation upon the Liverpool Cup were not very extensive to-day, and the best offer against Bismarck proved 9 to 2, while Fullerton finished up next in demand at 7 to 1, and a point more was taken about Ashplant. At one period 15 to 2 was booked to Acme, but later on 10 to 1 was laid, and Danbydale stood on a similar mark, while Trayles retired to 100 to 8. The latter price was freely accepted about Sorrento, and eleven "fifties" were finally booked to Polydor. Of the outsiders Lady Rosebery was in best demand, and 25 to 1 was offered against Peeler, after 20 to 1 had been booked.

FOOTBALL.

THE MAORIES v. NORTHUMBERLAND.

The eleventh match of the Colonials took place at Jesmond, Newcastle, on Saturday last, before 3,000 spectators. Owing to the recent heavy rain the ground was very soft. The home team kicked off. Play for some time was of an even character, neither side gaining any distinct advantage. A quarter of an hour after the start the colonists played up with a will, and pressed their opponents very hard, the ball being sent into touch in goal. Two more minors were added in favour of the Maories, who had by far the best of the game. Gage made his mark and M'Causland, from a difficult angle, landed a splendid goal. On changing ends, play was very fast, and the game was stubbornly contested. Northumberland obtained a free kick just over the half-way flag, and near to touch. Dodd took the place, and landed a beautiful goal, the ball striking the cross-bar and then falling over, amidst deafening cheers. Carr again got a mark, but Dodds' second attempt at goal failed. Up to the call of time nothing further was scored, the game ending in a draw. New Zealanders, one goal five minors; Northumberland, one goal.

The Maories play Stockton-on-Tees at Stockton to-day.

The principal Rugby matches decided on Saturday were:

LONDON SCOTTISH v. BLACKHEATH.—Played on the latter ground and, after a fast game, the Scots won by three goals and a try to a try.

BRADFORD v. RICHMOND.—Played at Old Deer Park, Richmond, the Tykes winning by two tries to nil.

CARDIFF v. HALIFAX (Yorkshire Cup holders).—Played at Cardiff, the home team being victorious by two goals and two tries to one goal and one try.

HULL v. YORK.—Decided at the former place. The home team had all the best of the game, and won by one goal and a try to nil.

LEICESTER v. RUGBY.—Played at Leicester. A grand game ensued, and a better-contested match has seldom been seen at Leicester. Eventually ended in a draw, minor points only being scored on both sides.

EAST v. WEST LANCASHIRE.—At Whalley Grange, Manchester, before a large number of spectators. The West won by one goal and two tries to three tries.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY v. R.I.E.—Played at Cooper's-hill, Oxford winning by one goal and four tries to nil.

MANCHESTER v. SWINTON.—On the latter ground, resulting in a draw, both sides being credited with a goal each.

LIVERPOOL v. BOLTON.—Played at Aigburth, and won by Liverpool by one goal and seven tries to nil.

Among the matches played under Association Rules on Saturday may be noted the following:

Derbyshire beat Cheshire, at Derby (2–1).
Somerset beat Dorset, at Taunton (4–2).
Cambridge University beat Swifts, at Cambridge (8–3).
Berks and Bucks beat Wilts, at Swindon (3–1).
Staffordshire beat Cheshire, at Port Vale Grounds, Burslem (6–1).

THE IRISH EXHIBITION.—Lord Arthur Hill, M.P., was presented at Olympia, on Saturday, with an address and a service of plate by the exhibitors at the Irish Exhibition in recognition of his exertions, which had largely contributed to the success of the undertaking. Mr. Edmund Johnson, of Dublin, on behalf of the exhibitors, congratulated his Lordship on the result of the enterprise. The address, which was read by Mr. W. Wilson, Belfast, acknowledged the arduous labours of Lord A. Hill as honorary secretary. In that capacity his Lordship had rendered valuable service to a project which had been the means of giving a great impetus to Irish trades and manufactures. Whilst many of the first firms in Ireland had not availed themselves of the exhibition, those who had entered into it with spirit had found many new channels of trade opened to them. The subscribers to the address included the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Sir E. Guinness, the officials of the Exhibition, and a large number of the exhibitors. Lord A. Hill, in reply, expressed the hope that the successful effort of 1888 would prove what Irish industry was capable of producing, and would tend to develop the resources of their country. If he had been able to render any practical aid in his official position, it had been due to the cordial co-operation of those with whom he had acted.

IRONWORKERS AND THEIR WAGES.—The South Staffordshire and East Worcestershire ironworkers have made another claim for an advance of wages, and have, through their secretary, desired that the Midland Steel and Iron Wages Board be called together to consider their application.

MEDICAL ELECTRICITY.—In the opinion of the medical faculty the value of electricity as a therapeutic agent has not been sufficiently recognised in the past, but of late years the Medical Battery Company (Limited) have made many advances in the extension of its use. Mr. C. B. Harness, the company's chief consulting medical electrician, is recognised by the profession to be the most experienced medical electrician in the kingdom, having personally treated thousands of cases with remarkable success, although many of them have been of a most complicated and serious nature. A large number of so-called hopeless cases have been placed under the charge of Mr. Harness by medical men whose resources have been exhausted, and his Electropathic or Electro-Massage methods of cure have completely restored the patients to health. This fact can be easily verified by a personal inspection of the thousands of unsolicited testimonials to be seen at the company's Electropathic and Zander Institute, 52, Oxford-street, London, W. A visit to this complete and extensive medical institution will convince any one of the rapid strides the above system is making. To give an account, or even to enumerate the various appliances invented by Mr. Harness for the cure of such diseases as nervous exhaustion, brain fag, rheumatism, gout, sciatica, lumbago, sleeplessness, torpid liver, indigestion, constipation, ladies' ailments, kidney diseases, epilepsy, paralysis, and kindred disorders would occupy far too much space. Mr. Harness has recently had the honour of being elected president of the British Association of Medical Electricians, and his services and valuable inventions have been exclusively secured by the Medical Battery Company (Limited). Mention may especially be made of Harness' Electropathic Battery Belts, which give a gentle, constant current, permeating the system, and affording almost instantaneous relief, without giving the slightest inconvenience to wear. Some very valuable appliances for the cure of rupture, which have proved most efficacious, are also worthy of the attention of sufferers from this torturing affliction. At the Electropathic and Zander Institute a perfect system of Electro-Massage is carried out by a staff of experienced masseurs and electricians, under the personal superintendence of Mr. Harness and the company's consulting physician. Patients can undergo a thorough course of treatment at this establishment which is the largest, and certainly the most complete, in the world, and has long been recommended by the leading medical and scientific authorities. The Electro-Massage operating and consulting rooms are beautifully furnished, and patients will find them perfectly comfortable in every respect. A portion of the premises is fitted with Dr. Zander's patent machines for mechanical exercises. This celebrated treatment cannot be obtained at any other establishment in the kingdom. Those interested should therefore carefully note that the only address is 52, Oxford-street, London, W. (corner of Rathbone-place). Patients under Mr. Harness' care are certain of having the best advice gratis and the most approved treatment. Mr. Harness' valuable medical treatises are sent free to all who write for them. Those who are in search of health and strength should write for a copy and judge for themselves.—[ADVT.]

BOROUGH HOP.—About an average business is passing in hops. Holders of good samples are not unwilling to let, but they must have their price. This is specially the case as regards East Kent and Californian hops. On the Continent an advance varying from 5s to 10s per cwt is reported, the result of the expansion of the bona fide demand. The market generally, though not active, is firm: East Kent Goldings, £6, £10, £15; Mid Kent Goldings, £5, £7, £12 12s; Weald of Kents, £2, £5, £11; Sussex, £4, £6 10s, £10; Worcesters, £5, £10, £12; Farnham, £5, £7, £10; Country Farnhams, £5, £6 6s, £9; Burgundy hops, £5 5s, £5 10s, £7 10s; Bavarian, £4 to £11 11s; American and Californian, £6 to £10 10s; and yearlings, £2 to £6 per cwt.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.—Sales of the day 5,000 bales; on speculation and for export, 500. American quiet, unchanged. East Indian unaltered. Egyptian neglected. Middling Upland, 5 11-16d; ditto Orleans, 5 11-16d; fair Pernam, 6d; [illegible] brown Egyptian, 6 1-4d; fair Dhollerah, 4½d; good ditto, 4 15-16d; fair Oomra, 4 1-2d; good ditto, 4 11-16d. Futures higher.

CHESTER CORN.—Wheat was more freely offered, and the condition being improved, millers readily bought up all samples at the full rates of the previous week, namely, 4s 11d to 5s 1d per 75lb. Trade dull in barley and beans. Good parcels of old oats realised 3s 3d to 3s 10d.

CORK CORN.—68 cwt red wheat, 7s 6d to 8s; 214 cwt barley, 5s 6d to 7s 6d; 2,013 cwt black oats, 4s 8d to 5s 3d; 314 cwt white oats, 5s 2d to 6s.

DONCASTER CORN.—Small supply of wheat, and not many buyers. Foreign wheat firm. English the turn lower. Barley trade quiet, and though the best samples maintain late values, other sorts are 1s per qr. lower. New oats and beans unchanged; old oats firm.

NEWCASTLE CORN.—There was a good attendance. Dry English and foreign wheats were firmly held for late rates. Soft samples of local wheats almost unsaleable. Barley firmer, and good lots were in favour of sellers. Oats firm, at Saturday's rates. Beans and peas steady. Maize had a fairly good sale at late rates. Flour was in good demand at fully last week's prices.

CORK BUTTER.—Ordinary: Firsts, 97s; seconds, 85s; thirds, 84s, fourths, 68s. Kegs: Firsts, 103s; seconds, 88s. Mild-cured firkins: Superfine, 112s; fine, 103s; mild, 92s. Ditto kegs, fine mild, 93s. In market, 1,607 firkins, 2 kegs (194 mild).

ELECTRICAL AND PUMILIO-PINE TREATMENT.—Every man and woman suffering from gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, indigestion, paralysis, epilepsy, liver complaints, nervous debility, and any nervous or organic derangement, should send for one of Johnson's Patent Hygeio-Electric Belts, which combine the efficacy of a portable voltaic battery with the hygienic properties of Dr. Danziger's "Medicated Pumilio Pinol Felt." This belt is the only scientific bona-fide electric belt offered to the public. It is a marvel of efficacy and cheapness.—Write for pamphlet, post free from W. G. Johnson, Medico-Electric Belt, Truss, and Battery Company (Limited), 58, New Bond-street, London, W.—[ADVT.]

There is unquestionably no better remedy in the whole world for all cough and throat troubles than Keating's Lozenges—any medical man will assure you of this fact. Relief is speedy; they contain no strong acting, but only simple drugs; the most delicate can take them. Sold everywhere in 13½d. tins.—[ADVT.]

MR. GLADSTONE'S VISIT TO BIRMINGHAM.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

BIRMINGHAM, SUNDAY.

A more woe-begone, depressing appearance than that presented by Birmingham when I arrived here yesterday afternoon would be hard to conceive. The town lay dank and steaming under a pall of smoke and cloud, rain steadily fell, and the people who were necessarily out in the sloppy streets looked—as, no doubt, they felt—the reverse of festive. But there is no occasion, climatic or other, which everybody agrees to look at from the same point of view. The amenities of yesterday's weather probably sent the Gladstonian spirits down to zero, and, it may be, had a contrary effect upon those of the Unionists. Both parties anticipated, perhaps, the same scene—the Grand Old Man driving gloomily through Birmingham streets in a closed carriage, surrounded by sodden admirers, and greeted by damp cheers; but one was ready to curse, the other to bless, the Fates that, under political circumstances, shape the ends of men. I am told, however, that at the present moment a lull prevails; some such as might be experienced by a ship that, having gone through a cyclone into the peaceful centre of the whirl, there reposes before adventuring the stress of getting out the other side. A few days ago all Birmingham was convulsed by a municipal election which—significant, but essentially curious fact!—the townsfolk fought on the Irish question, as though it mattered to the domestic interests of the place whether its gas, water, paving, and draining were looked after by Home Rulers or their opponents. The fight, it appears, was a hot one, ending in the dismissal of two Gladstonians, whose seats were equally divided between the allied forces which ousted them. As I drove through the town yesterday, survivals of the struggle appeared on walls and hoardings, which the rain was endeavouring to wash clean. Nothing is so reproachful as dead election literature, except, perhaps, the débris of a night's debauch when looked at the following morning with eyes dimmed by headache. In both cases the question is, "Could I ever have been such a fool?" the appeal from Philip politically or alcoholically drunk to Philip in the same sense sober, ending with a reversal of the judgment in the court below. But alongside extinct election addresses, sometimes half covering them, were other posters very much alive, because telling of events to come, of processions, and receptions, and meetings, all in honour of the man and the cause, whose two local followers are still smarting from the sting of defeat. Truly, the unsophisticated "Brum" may be forgiven if, turning the whole matter over in his mind, and comparing the present politics of his "hardware village" with those which prevailed half a dozen years ago, he feels bewildered enough to go through the Commination Service and curse all and sundry who remove the ancient landmarks. Taking up one of the comic journals published here, I found the average man's difficulty neatly put. There are three parties to the strife: Gladstonians, Conservatives, and Liberal Unionists. Of these the Gladstonians have to prove that Mr. Chamberlain's policy in the Town Council was the right one, but they must also show that Mr. Chamberlain is the biggest tyrant and political blunderer alive. The Conservatives, on their part, have to praise Mr. Chamberlain's creed and policy, while remembering his belief that Birmingham Tories are municipal dullards. Lastly, the Liberal Unionists must demonstrate that the supporters of Mr. Chamberlain's policy in the past are now the national enemies of England's prosperity; making it clear also that the Birmingham Conservatives are truly enlightened in municipal matters, although Mr. Chamberlain would have none of them up to a year ago. Truth to tell, the situation as thus defined is more than a little mixed, and such as ordinary intellects would be likely to "give up." For this reason, perhaps, half the electors stayed away from the polls, being no less puzzled about their bearings than was old Sol Gills concerning the whereabouts of the ship that carried Wal'r.

One very definite conception appears to prevail in Birmingham by way of contrast to the general confusion. It is that the people will come out by tens of thousands to-morrow for the purpose of seeing Mr. Gladstone. In view of this the authorities have taken wise precautions, and along the whole route, from Snow-hill to the Town Hall, through Bull-street, Corporation-street, and New-street, strong barriers have been erected to keep the expected crowd from doing itself an injury. A royal progress could not be more carefully provided for than that of the ex-Minister. Meanwhile, strangers are pouring into the town from all parts of the compass, to the delight of hotel-keepers and letters of lodgings. I hear of one unfortunate who spent two hours in driving from house to house before he could secure a place to lay his head, and of another who, despairing of Birmingham, took flight to Leamington, and there found rest. As for tickets to the various meetings, particularly the monster gathering in Bingley Hall on Wednesday evening, I am told that neither love nor money buys them, and all that belated applicants can do is to fight their way in with the unpaying crowd, and take their chance of standing room. I express no opinion about the political significance of this; but one cannot be far wrong in attributing much of it to Mr. Gladstone's commanding personality, and his great oratorical reputation. It is certain that no other man could excite the same degree of eager interest, or the same almost passionate desire to look upon his face and hear his voice. Little time will be cut to waste during the right hon. gentleman's stay in Birmingham, though the arrangements minimise as far as possible the demands upon his voice and strength. Mr. Gladstone arrives at Snow-hill Station to-morrow at 1.15, a limited number of friends and officials receiving him, and escorting him, in a procession of ten carriages, to the Town Hall, where the members of the Birmingham Liberal Association will await his coming. The route from point to point makes a considerable détour through some of the best streets in the town, obviously that the distinguished visitor may present himself to the masses of the people before facing the representatives of the Liberal section. It should be understood that the Town Hall meeting to-morrow is purely a local affair, and has nothing to do with the Liberal Federation. Under the presidency of Mr. C. Osler an address will be presented to Mr. Gladstone, who is expected to make a reply. The right hon. gentleman will then be driven to the residence of Sir Walter Foster, at Edgbaston, where he resides during his stay in the town. But the evening hours of to-morrow are not wholly unprovided for, and Mr. Mark Noble will give a popular lecture on "Gladstone," in the Town Hall, with dissolving views of places and scenes made famous by the hero of the day. The Liberal Federation meetings begin on Tuesday, under the presidency of Sir J. Kitson; the Women's Liberal Federation hold "a conference of political workers" at the same time; in the afternoon Mrs. H. G. Reid gives a reception to ladies at Warley Hall; and, later, the Mayor of Birmingham entertains Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone and a large party at the Council House, the invitations being sent out irrespective of politics. Whether any Conservative or Liberal Unionists will honour the Mayor with their presence on the occasion is accounted doubtful, although they have not followed the example of Mr. Jesse Collings, and publicly declined. These are but some of the engagements of a busy day. In the afternoon Mr. Gladstone receives deputations at Sir Walter Foster's house, later on a meeting takes place in the Town Hall, Lord Ripon in the chair, and the Welsh National party have an innings of their own at the Temperance Hall. On Wednesday the Liberal Federation resumes its sittings, while the feminine "political workers" meet under the presidency of Mrs. Gladstone. Last of all comes the great gathering to which reference has been made above, and for which an army of workmen are transforming the vast cattle-shed known as Bingley Hall into an immense octagon, with an area capable of accommodating 20,000 standing persons, surrounded by raised galleries seating several thousands more. On Thursday Mr. Gladstone leaves Birmingham for West Bromwich, thence making a kind of triumphal progress through the Black Country to the residence of Mr. Philip Stanhope.

For such a programme as the foregoing favourable weather is certainly desirable, but the outlook in that respect remains as dark as the now beclouded sky. Rain or shine, the work will be done by the political enthusiasts who have overrun Birmingham, and whose sole really disturbing thought arises from the possibility of their old leader not holding out to the end.

CONFERENCE ON EVANGELICAL PREACHING.—Writing from the City Temple, Dr. Parker says: The notice on this subject which you kindly inserted has brought me several inquiries, which I ask your permission to answer: 1. The conference will be open to all who care to attend it, and will be in no wise limited to ministers. 2. No cards of admission will be needed. 3. Gentlemen desiring to take part in the conference may communicate with Rev. [illegible] Newth, New College, South Hampstead.

POLITICAL SPEECHES.

MR. BALFOUR.

The twenty-first annual conference of the National Union of Conservative Associations was concluded at Wolverhampton on Saturday. In the absence of Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett, M.P., the chairman of the council, Mr. Dixon-Hartland, M.P., presided. The discussion on Mr. Howard Vincent's resolution, which was not concluded when the conference adjourned on Friday, was resumed. The motion was in the following terms: "That it is vital to the Imperial interests of the British Empire to stimulate by all possible means the advantageous interchange of commerce between all its territories, and that for the mutual advantage of the industrial masses in the United Kingdom, the Colonies, and dependencies, the limitations upon internal fiscal liberty imposed upon her Majesty's Government by the foreign treaties of 1862-1865 and subsequent years should be modified as early as practicable." In the course of the animated discussion which followed, Mr. Blandford moved the previous question. This, on being put, was carried by at least three to one. Mr. Tipper (Birmingham) protested against so important a discussion being closed before the bulk of the delegates had arrived at the conference.

The delegates afterwards adjourned to the Drill Hall, for the purpose of presenting addresses to the Chief Secretary. The addresses numbered over 153, and their presentation occupied about an hour. Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett presided, and there was a crowded attendance. After the delegates had filed past the Chief Secretary, and had handed in their addresses, Mr. Alfred Hickman proposed, and Mr. Dixon-Hartland, M.P., seconded, a vote of thanks to the right hon. gentleman for his attendance. The vote was carried with acclamation.

Mr. BALFOUR, who was received with great enthusiasm, said: Nothing has ever given me more pleasure than the manner in which the resolution has been received by a gathering more representative, perhaps, than any other which it was possible for one to address in the country. (Cheers.) For, as you know, this is no mere local gathering, no mere representation of Conservative opinion in and about Wolverhampton, but you have come, many of you, from long distances, representing all parts of the country, not England alone, but Scotland and Ireland, in order to testify your unaltered and unalterable adhesion to the great principle of the Union which the present Government was returned to office to preserve. (Cheers.) I find that my speech of yesterday has been interpreted as meaning that I hold that the tenants who suffered themselves to be evicted rather than pay unjust rents are worse than highway robbers. (Oh.) Now, I do not admire, I do not profess to admire, the conduct of any tenant who, being able to pay his rent, nevertheless resists the officers of the law when they come to demand the rent; but I entirely deny that I used any expression which could be so interpreted. (Hear, hear.) I did make a comparison between the conduct of certain persons and the conduct of highway robbers, but the people I compared to highway robbers were the Irish agitators, who, by preaching at once a doctrine which compelled the landlord to evict the tenant, and at the same time preaching another doctrine which prevented anybody else paying the tenant what was justly his, namely, the value of his tenant-right, acted not towards the landlords but towards the tenant, exactly as a highway robber would do. (Cheers.) I notice that Mr. Herbert Gladstone and others have been criticising my movements and commenting severely upon the short time which they allege I spend in Ireland. Now I don't owe those critics any account or any justification of my private movements. (Hear, hear.) I owe to the country—I owe to you—an account of the manner in which I perform the duties of my office, and I am always ready to give that account; but I owe to nobody any justification of the number of journeys I take between London and Dublin, or what I pay for railway fare. (Hear, hear.) I am often surprised at this touching anxiety that I should spend some time in Ireland—(laughter)—because I don't find that approval of what I do in Ireland—(more laughter)—emanating from those who are my chief critics. I observe that Sir George Trevelyan is very much exercised at the fact that I do not spend as much time in Ireland as he said he did, but I cannot conceive why he should be so anxious to look back to his rule in that country. (Cheers.) He cannot help dwelling lovingly upon his first Irish post, although his whole present attitude is a condemnation of every single act he did while in office. It appears to me that, so far from being proud of having spent so many months in Ireland, he ought to throw a veil over the whole transaction, ought to avoid alluding to it at all, or, if he does allude to it, it ought to be, metaphorically, in sackcloth and ashes. (Laughter.) However, I don't propose now to treat at any further length on any of the topics which have occupied so much of your time since you came to Wolverhampton. I think we shall all depart this afternoon with the consciousness that we have derived strength and encouragement from the great meetings which have been held here. (Hear, hear.) We came out from our own parts of the country from fighting there the great battle of the Union, and we have met here together in council to discuss our policy with those engaged in the same great struggle from other districts and from far-spreading regions. I think we shall depart encouraged in the fight in which we are still engaged by what has passed here. We shall continue the same struggle carried on with such success in other parts of the country. We shall be able to carry into our own districts and spread among our own people all the encouragement we have derived. We shall be able to do what it seems necessary to do at the present moment, namely, to let the truth be known. If the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth be once brought home to the mass of the English people, I have no fear—I won't say that the next general election will not reverse the verdict of the country—but that no general election will take place which will shake the solid foundation upon which the Union of England, Ireland, and Scotland ought to rest. (Cheers.) Do you each in your own sphere what lies in you to dissipate the mists of prejudice, error, calumny, and falsehood, which it is the chief, and I may say almost only, work of a large party in the country at this moment to spread like a pall over the political heavens. (Hear, hear.) If you do that, and do it with effect, depend upon it you will do more to win the next general election and to maintain in power a Unionist Government even than by bringing to greater perfection the organisations with which you are severally connected. (Hear, hear.) I thank you most heartily for the manner in which you have received the resolution proposed. It is an encouragement, not to me merely, but to my colleagues—(hear, hear)—in whose name at this moment I am speaking. For the Irish policy is not the policy of one man; it is not even the policy of one Cabinet, it is the policy of a united Cabinet embracing within its limits more than one of the old traditional parties of the State. (Cheers.) For those on whom rests the responsibility of leading that party this meeting and the meetings that took place yesterday cannot be otherwise than a cause of the greatest encouragement, and it is in their name I give you my most hearty thanks. (Loud and prolonged cheers.)

Mr. Balfour was afterwards entertained to luncheon at the Agricultural Hall, and after replying to the toast of his health proposed "The Conservative Club and the Reception Committee."

After leaving the Agricultural Hall, Mr. Balfour, accompanied by his sister Miss Balfour, and Mr. Alfred Hickman, drove to the Deanery Conservative Club and then proceeded to the North-street Working Men's Conservative Club, where he was enthusiastically received by a large gathering of the members. Mr. E. Hopkins (chairman of the club) occupied the chair. In introducing Mr. Balfour, he remarked that since the right hon. gentleman had been in Wolverhampton, that club had been flooded with enthusiastic Irishmen, who had stated that it was on the wise policy of Mr. Balfour that the prosperity and contentment of Ireland depended. He (the chairman) was sure the Irish Secretary must have a constitution of iron and a skin like the rhinoceros to enable him to fulfil all the duties imposed upon him. (Cheers.) Mr. Balfour briefly offered his acknowledgments, and, having been conducted over the club, left the town for London.

LORD GRANVILLE.

On Saturday afternoon Lord Granville laid the memorial tablet of a new Liberal club at Openshaw, near Manchester, and subsequently spoke at a meeting which was held in an adjoining tent. He said he had not spoken on the unfortunate incident that had arisen with regard to our Envoy in the United States. He did not mean to do so on that occasion for fear of increasing any difficulty that had arisen. He would confine himself to expressing a hope, which he trusted they would join in, that at this conjuncture the Foreign Office would treat this sudden question with dignity, conciliation, and consistency. As an old man he might venture to give them a little advice on the question of free trade. Protection had its allurements, and he did not think anybody objected to having a little slice of it applied to themselves—(hear, hear)—but if they subjected the question to the test of consideration on general principles, then they would recognise the baneful effects produced by protection on trade generally. Though consumers, employers, and especially the employed, might not be enabled to resist some encroachments on the subject, it was important to resist the beginning of any attempt which might lead that way. With regard to sugar bounties, they knew what had been done by her Majesty's Government; but he felt convinced that whatever Sir L. Mallet thought at the beginning of the negotiations, he could not and would not be in agreement with the results which had been arrived at. The same arguments were treated with contempt by Lord Salisbury, and also by the sugar refiners, though he could not class them with an authority such as Sir L. Mallet. Lord Salisbury, he thought, deserved credit for having at the risk of some unpopularity from a portion of his own followers put his foot down on protection duties on food and manufactures—(cheers)—but, at the same time, he (Lord Granville) could not help remarking how constantly Lord Salisbury was tempted into jeers at political economy, and how often he expressed regret at the inability to return to that old and obsolete system. Some time ago, just before the repeal of the Navigation Laws, they had a Commission sitting on the subject, and one witness, a ship owner, told them that the shipping trade of Great Britain had been a loss for the last twenty years. People, and especially Lancashire people, did not generally go on with a losing trade for a period of twenty years. (Laughter.) Every other witness told them that if they repealed the Navigation Laws the mercantile marine of the country would be utterly ruined. Those present knew more of Liverpool perhaps than he did, but he did not think that had been the case. It was an undoubted fact that at this moment the trading vessels of Great Britain amounted in value to £100,000,000. That fact had given him a lesson not to trust entirely to the statements of any particular class when arguing a question which particularly affected them. If her Majesty's Government knew that all the Governments concerned were really anxious to get rid of a thing which was bad in itself, and more especially injurious to the nations which granted bounties, he did not think there would have been any objection to her Majesty's Government joining in such an effort. What had been the result of sending an envoy from capital to capital, cap in hand? It had been to hamper ourselves in every way, to put us in the position of being obliged to follow the policy of other countries, and to do away with that absolute freedom of contract which was so useful, and which even the Custom House would find it very difficult to refuse. These sugar bounties either made sugar cheaper or contributed to make it cheaper, in which case they conferred great advantages on the consumers of sugar in this country, and they created new manufactures every day. Then it appeared to him that, if they tended to make sugar cheaper, it was advantageous. But what did the sugar refiners say? They said it would have the effect of falsely stimulating production, but that when a reaction occurred in the future, there would be a very small production of sugar. His rejoinder to that was the very reverse—that it would increase the area of the production of sugar, the modes of making it, and would extend its usefulness; therefore it was that he hoped they would press upon their representatives in Parliament the importance of very scrupulously watching when the request was made to Parliament to sanction a convention which he believed to be fraught with mischief, and an example for an encroachment upon Free Trade of a very dangerous character. (Cheers.) With regard to the great question of Home Rule or self-government for Ireland, he owned he was a convert. He was not converted by Mr. Gladstone, but by Lord Spencer, and he believed that those who had had opportunities of studying the whole question also believed that Home Rule was an absolute necessity, and, in fact, one of the greatest questions the Liberal party had ever taken in its hands. (Cheers.) The proceedings ended shortly afterwards.

The committees appointed in Wolverhampton and the neighbourhood to arrange for the reception of Mr. Gladstone have practically completed the details. The drive through the Black country will commence on Thursday at West Bromwich, and be continued through the various towns and villages to the residence of the Hon. P. Stanhope, at Wombourne, a distance of ten miles. Addresses will be presented at West Bromwich, and triumphal arches erected at various points. On Saturday Mr. Gladstone travels to Oxford viâ Wolverhampton.

Mr. Gladstone, the Earl of Rosebery, Sir W. Harcourt, Mr. John Morley, and other Liberal leaders have been invited by the Parliamentary Committee of the Highland Land League to express publicly, at the Birmingham conference, their views on the crofter question. The committee state that an indication of the policy of the Liberal party would probably obviate attacks on those Gladstonian members and candidates who, finding the leaders of the party silent, treat with indifference the pressing wants of the Highlanders.

In opening a new Conservative Club at Bamberbridge, near Preston, on Saturday, Viscount Cranborne, M.P., claimed that the Government were entitled to the gratitude of the people. Referring to the conversion scheme, he said Mr. Goschen had succeeded in saving a million and a quarter yearly of the taxpayers' money. On the question of national defence, he asserted that previous Governments had grossly neglected the duty of making proper provision in that direction. He was afraid both parties were to some extent responsible for that state of things; and, although the country had been recently roused on the subject, it must not be thought that what the present Government had done towards improving the defences of the country was the result of outside pressure, because when they first came into power they proceeded to deal with the question even to the extent of sacrificing Lord Randolph Churchill. Touching upon the Local Government Act he remarked that the measure contained several points which he personally regretted, but at the same time it had within it germs of a forward movement. He combated the objections raised in some quarters that the county councils would be more extravagant than the old quarter sessions, remarking that the extravagance or otherwise of the county councils was largely in the hands of the electors, who should see that they returned men who would conduct the business of the people with wise economy.—A resolution of confidence in the Government was passed.

The hon. sec. of the Nonconformist Unionist Association, Mr. W. E. Ball, 3, Pump-court, Temple, asks us to state that the demand for tickets for the banquet of Nov. 14 to Lord Salisbury and Lord Hartington has necessitated additional accommodation being provided. Applications for the remaining tickets should be made before next Friday. Besides those named in the list previously published the following gentlemen will be present: Sir Jas. P. Corry, Bart., M.P., Sir George Bruce, Pres. Inst. C.E., Sir James D. Allport, Colonel Arthur, Messrs. Mark J. Stewart, M.P., Alex. Craig-Sellar, M.P., E. M. Bainbridge, J.P., Joseph Collingham, J.P., Robert Davis, J.P., Wm. Edmunds, J.P., John Holden, J.P., H. D. Pochin, J.P., D.L., Alderman Peace, J.P., Wm. Tillie, J.P., D.L., and John Templeton, F.R.G.S.

IRISH AFFAIRS.

The Nationalist meeting at Drumlish, which was fixed for yesterday, was, late on Saturday night, proclaimed. Captain Stokes, divisional magistrate, arrived at Longford on Saturday evening, and large forces of police came by train to Longford en route for Drumlish. Mr. J. R. Cox, M.P., also arrived at Longford on Saturday evening. He was met at the station by Head-constable Weir, who served him with a copy of the proclamation. Shortly afterwards Mr. Peter Flood, chairman of the Town Commissioners, was addressing the crowd assembled at Stafford Hotel, when Captain Stokes ordered the meeting to be dispersed. Dr. Atkinson protested that it was not an illegal meeting. The police charged in two bodies, and a scene of indescribable confusion ensued. The chairman of the Poor Law Board was bâtoned and knocked down, and several bâton charges were made. The police and the 11th Hussars proceeded yesterday to Drumlish.

Great excitement exists in Middleton in consequence of the death of the man Ahearn from a wound received during the recent riot. The Nationalists are highly indignant with the police, whose appearance in the streets is greeted with howls of "Murderers," "Balfour's Bloodhounds," and similar cries. The windows of the shop where the five constables took refuge from the mob were smashed yesterday, and the shopkeeper narrowly escaped injury from a missile. He has also been threatened for sheltering the constables. The authorities are taking due precautions for the preservation of peace. The coroner, Mr. Rice, has ordered a post-mortem examination of Ahearn's body, and the inquest takes place to-day. Arrangements are in progress for a public funeral.

A National League meeting, attended by Mr. D. Sheehy, M.P., Mr. John Finucane, M.P., and Mr. F. A. O'Keeffe, M.P., mayor of Limerick, was held yesterday at Ballyneety. Mr. Sheehy, referring at some length to the statements made by Mr. Balfour at Wolverhampton, said it was true there was no crime in Ireland. Any crime that existed was committed by the followers of the Tory Government. Mr. Balfour forgot to mention the Belfast forgers, the murderers of Kinsella at Coolgreaney, and the murderers at Mitchelstown. The Chief Secretary confined himself to the past two years, but the real explanation of the present tranquil state of Ireland was in the hope which now filled the breasts of Irishmen when they had a gigantic ally in the person of Mr. Gladstone and his mighty party—an ally which made Irishmen turn aside from the wild policy of dynamite operation. Mr. Finucane and Mr. O'Keeffe also spoke. The action of a local "landgrabber" was denounced, and Mr. Moran, a solicitor, said the grabber should be treated as a moral leper, a filthy, diseased thing, and be run from as they would run from cholera. Shopkeepers should refuse him the necessaries of life, his children should be shunned, and the man be made to live in a world of his own. There should be no shilly-shallying with regard to boycotting the grabber, but it should be done effectually until the man was brought to a sense of his duty. Father Moran also strongly denounced land-grabbing, and said the man who so acted should be left severely alone to his meditations.

SUNDAY TRADING IN THE EAST-END.

Until eleven o'clock yesterday morning a portion of Brick-lane, Bethnal-green, was a crowded street market. Costermongers' barrows and stalls rendered vehicular traffic impossible and the pedestrian had difficulty in moving amongst the piles of vegetables, stores of cheap clothing, and joints of meat, displayed for sale. The purchasers, mostly women, were evidently of the poorest class, and frequently of the lowest type. Some had it was said, been drinking in public-houses until late on Saturday night, and were therefore compelled to do their marketing on Sunday; others had deferred buying because of the chance of making better bargains, whilst a few had had no choice. Beef at 4d. per pound; cauliflowers two for a penny; and other articles equally reasonable were disposed of not merely by the hawkers, but by certain of the tradesmen, whose premises were open. At eleven a.m. there was a decided clearance voluntarily undertaken. A few minutes later a couple of scavengers, with a parish cart, began to clear away the garbage which littered the roadway, the habit of the dealers being to throw their refuse on the ground, to be trodden into mire. The appearance of Dowling, the Sanitary Inspector, was the signal for greater activity in the removal of obstructions, and generally a word from him was quite sufficient. He performed his duty firmly, and without causing irritation, and the three policemen who followed him were not called upon to interfere. In a very short time Brick-lane was comparatively free, although some barrowmen tried to elude the vigilant eye of the vestry official, by dodging round side streets until he had passed. Prohibited from using barrows, they availed themselves of baskets and sacks, but it was obvious that trade was over for the day. Most of the tradesmen, however, chiefly butchers and clothiers, served customers until one p.m.; but some of these people did not hesitate to say that they had no sympathy with the movement in favour of Sunday trading, and would like to see it put down by common consent. Whilst matters were thus quietly progressing in Brick-lane, Sclater-street, or Bird Fair, which at eleven a.m. was thinly attended, was filling up gradually, until at midday it was thronged. In this thoroughfare the few shops which have survived the improvements effected in recent years are tenanted by clothiers, bootmakers, and dealers in birds and live stock. For many years the place has been recognised as the resort for fanciers, and the custom has been for men and lads from distant parts of the metropolis to gather on Sunday mornings to barter and to sell their pets. Almost every individual yesterday carried under his arm a cage wrapped in a coloured pocket-handkerchief. In the cage there was a chaffinch, and occasionally the owner allowed the bird to see the light, when it immediately began to sing, "Tol-iol-iol, chick-we-doo." The fanciers know the notes well, and yesterday, in a side street, might be seen as many as a dozen cages hung against a hoarding, their feathered occupants vieing with each other in song, while their possessors asked prices, determined by the efficiency which the birds displayed. Lads with pigeons, rabbits, mice, tame rats, goats, dogs, and fowls, loitered about, whilst itinerant dealers vended hot peas, whelks, and other toothsome dainties, apparently appreciated. Gambling, also, went on, but a careful watch was maintained for strangers. In Sclater-street there are no costermongers, and yesterday the sanitary inspector contented himself by putting to sudden flight the gentlemen who sold sarsaparilla and dandelion pills from smartly got up gigs; but these folk did not take themselves off altogether, and reappeared when the official was no longer to be seen. The chief offenders, according to the vestry, are not the quacks, street mountebanks, Socialists (who, in spite of their three red flags, had a poor following), and the preachers, all of whom interrupt traffic, but the birdshop-keepers. The cages containing canaries, chaffinches, starlings, blackbirds, linnets, and many other varieties of small birds, are exhibited outside the shops, and before them assemble groups of men and boys, intent upon deciding their respective merits. Summonses have been taken out against these dealers, whose contention has been that eleven o'clock is too early for them and that one o'clock is time enough to close their doors to customers. On Saturday night a committee meeting of the protection society which has been formed agreed that at one p.m. on the Sunday the tradesmen would, in order to show their good faith take their goods into their shops. Accordingly this plan was in several instances adopted yesterday. There is a feeling that some compromise may be accepted, but the vestry in their action are not executing what has been done elsewhere, and they are encouraged to persevere by ratepayers, who contend that no hard-ship has been imposed upon the poor by the new regulations to limit Sunday trading.

A USEFUL HINT.—If British housekeepers, instead of purchasing the commonest of common matches, because they are low priced and thought to be cheap, would use none but matches bearing Bryant and May's name, they would not only get the best value for their money, but would enable Bryant and May to pay thousands of pounds more weekly in wages; and in that way the British housekeepers would be doing real good to the working classes of the East-end of London.—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

CRYSTAL PALACE CONCERTS.

The programme of last Saturday's concert presented features of special interest to musical amateurs, since it contained a new symphony by an English composer, and dance music written early in the century by a great classical writer, and now marked "first time of performance." But anxiety to hear novelties did not militate against enjoyment of works established in public favour. In this category Beethoven's overture, "Leonora, No. 2," was long ago placed, although overshadowed to some extent by the "No. 3," a younger sister of the "Leonora" family. But the most critical of the audience on Saturday were not able for the moment to institute a comparison between the two, by reason of the brilliancy which characterised the performance of the one then under treatment. That it was technically accurate will be taken for granted, but the life which animated the interpretation was remarkable even for a Crystal Palace orchestra. From the opening unison to the scale passage leading to the triumphant finale every thought embodied in the score, whether of grief or joy, was faithfully expressed. Moved by such a notable display the audience at the termination of the overture warmly applauded Mr. August Manns, whose untiring zeal and artistic intelligence had brought about so admirable a result. To be placed immediately after Beethoven is, indeed, a trying situation for any musician, yet Mr. Henry Gadsby had, in introducing his "Festal Symphony," to contend with that formidable difficulty. Happily, he did not appear as a stranger. At various times during the last few years he has submitted compositions of considerable dimensions and importance to a Crystal Palace audience, who invariably have accorded them high approval. Success, however, entails responsibilities, and the company on Saturday naturally expected that Mr. Gadsby would reach the high standard previous works had established, if he did not attain to a still higher level. Now in all confidence it can be said that the symphony holds a position far in advance of that occupied by any previous effort. By the title "Festal Symphony" the composer indicates the special idea he purposes to illustrate. Had he withheld this information the joyous tone of three of the movements would have revealed his intentions. In the opening allegro we recognise a stateliness of joy, in the scherzo a wantonness of mirth, and in the finale an exuberance of glee, tempered, however, by strains of a religious character. In the adagio there is also an endeavour to sustain a cheerful tone by continuing the employment of the "brass," but the attempt fails. Had the principal theme been attractive in itself, it would even then have been overweighted by the heavy surroundings. That the composer has been happy in choice of subjects for the adagio cannot be averred. Of the other movements it may be said that they abound in themes of a joyous nature, and that they everywhere bear witness to the presence of constructive skill and sound musicianship. Under the direction of Mr. August Manns the "Festal Symphony" was performed in a most excellent manner. Mr. Gadsby was summoned to the platform by a gratified audience to receive the applause he so thoroughly deserved. The "five dances for strings," by Schubert, heard on this occasion for the first time, gave delight, by virtue of melodic grace. They afforded a striking contrast to the ballet airs from "Étienne Marcel," by Saint-Saëns, the former being idyllic, the latter theatrical; the one redolent of Arcadia, the other savouring of the "footlights." Mdlle. Janotha played in brilliant style the solo part in Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor for pianoforte and orchestra; but the lady was hardly so successful in Chopin's Scherzo in B minor. Mdlle. Douilly sang the cavatina, "Jours de mon enfance," by Hérold, the violin obbligato being entrusted to Miss Marie Douglas.

EDUCATION OR STARVATION.

With regard to the prosecution of Isaac Twist at the Worship-street Police-court, for the non-attendance of his daughter Florence, aged eleven years, at school, a correspondent writes: I found my way to Bath-buildings, Bath-street, City-road, on Saturday afternoon and discovered the residence of Isaac Twist. It is a rather depressing neighbourhood, and there are sad evidences of poverty all round. The father was ill in bed suffering from asthma and bronchitis, in a small room without a fire, scarcely the conditions suited to his state, but his wife told me she had not the money to buy coal. I examined the child who was the subject of the prosecution. She read the newspaper report of her case, which she had not seen before, fairly well, and I saw a letter she had sent to her parents which was by no means badly written nor ill-expressed. The other facts were substantially as the child stated them in the court. There is a second family of four little girls, of which Florence is the eldest, the others being three, seven, and nine years old respectively. The burden of their support falls mainly on the mother, a monthly nurse, the father doing what he can as a medical herbalist, selling his simples in the street when weather permits, and on the eldest child comes the care of most of the domestic arrangements. It seemed to me quite clear that the parents were anxious the children should be taught, but the eldest had been sent back from Central-street School because she went without the 2d fee, and they are too poor to be able to find the pence regularly for the four little ones—in addition to food and clothing. Indeed, to be candid, I should have said food for the body was more urgently needed than for the mind. Part of this case the education officials themselves admitted, for they called on Saturday morning and undertook to remit the fees for the future. On the whole, I could not resist the impression that this was not the case for a prosecution, and that an arrangement might easily have been made, as it is now, without dragging this poor man or his child before the Court and fining them 6d. and 2s. costs.

On the other hand, the School Board and its visitors have a difficult task. It is for them to see that this little Florence is not sacrificed altogether, while she is within the school-going age, to domestic calls. To their credit, the parents conceded all this, and, further, that hitherto Mr. Saunders, the superintendent of visitors, and the members of the Board, have treated them considerately and kindly. They had remitted fees, and provided one of the children with shoes to enable her to attend school. In the case of Florence Twist, it is somewhat reassuring to find that there is some one to look after the eldest girl, who is so often sacrificed for the younger ones, and that the standard of the three R's in this poor district is such that this child, though by no means badly taught on the whole, had not reached it. I was glad to see that the lowliest of those for whose benefit the Education Act was passed recognised the righteousness of its intention, even when pressed, as they thought, rather severely against them. The neighbours were very kind to the family, and, thanks to the notice in The Daily Telegraph, generous visitors called upon them, and I am happy to believe that before the day was over the much-needed fire was lighted in the grate.

We have received the following sums with the request that they may be forwarded to the family: Mrs. Chalk, Caterham Valley, 10s; "Bis Dat" (National Liberal Club), 5s; George Way, 5s; "A 'Sympathiser with the Poor,'" 2s 6d. These amounts will meet the immediate necessities of the case.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE DAILY TELEGRAPH."

SIR—With reference to the paragraph in your issue of the 3rd inst., will you be kind enough to place the following facts before your readers. The child, Florence Twist, has been attending the Central-street Board School for some considerable time. She is eleven years of age, and has passed no standard. Her attendances from May 2 last to Oct. 26 were sixty-two times out of a possible 214; having been entirely absent from school for the last nine weeks. The plea of the father's illness was never set up by the parents as a reason for the child's absence from school. The only reason ever given to the officer was that she had been sent away from school because the father could not pay the school fees. The fees have been remitted for a very considerable time, but the period of remission expired in September. The parents were again invited to attend a meeting of the local managers on three separate occasions; but no one attended, consequently the child had to be sent home for non-payment of fees. It is, no doubt, correct to state that the father is a delicate man; but the officer for the district saw him at the door on Oct. 31, and he has always been in the habit of answering the visitor when he has called at the house; and the mother assured me this morning in the presence of her husband, that the only reason why the child did not attend school regularly, was because she could not pay the fees. The mother is the principal support of the family, and the father attends to the domestic duties of the house, while she is out nursing; and this he has been able to do up to the present time. Mr. Twist has kept a herbalist's shop in the parish of St. Luke's for many years, how long he has been out of business I am unable to say, and though they are very poor there does not appear to be any substantial reason why the child should not attend school, as the parents can always have their fees remitted if they will take the trouble to see the local managers of the school at which the children attend.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

W. SAUNDERS, Superintendent.

EPIDEMIC IN EAST LONDON.

Dr. Debenham, house physician at the London Hospital, stated on Saturday to Mr. Wynne E. Baxter, coroner for the Eastern Division of Middlesex, during his inquiry into the circumstances of the death of a child at Walthamstow from diphtheria, that cases of this disease in the East-end had, within the last few days, increased to the proportions of an epidemic. So numerous had they become that it was found expedient to forbid the hospital officials to admit any but extreme cases. In order to relieve the strain on the hospital, all the less virulent attacks were ordered to be sent on to the fever hospitals. He could not say off-hand which particular locality in East London was most affected, but he believed they had received most of the urgent cases from Hackney and the surrounding districts. The father of the deceased child stated that where he lived there were no sewers, the sewage being drained into cesspools at the rear of the houses. Each cesspool was common to several houses, and at times the stench was horrible. He had heard that several deaths in the neighbourhood recently had been attributed to diphtheria. Some time ago the sanitary authorities had been moved in the matter, but beyond issuing some printed notices nothing was done. The coroner observed that if such a state of things existed as described steps should immediately be taken to improve matters. It was beyond doubt that bad drainage, if it did not cause diphtheria, propagated and aggravated it enormously, and in face of the alarming information given them by Dr. Debenham, he felt sure the jury would heartily join with him in making strong representations to the local sanitary authority at Walthamstow. The jury unhesitatingly concurred with the coroner's remarks, and added a special rider to their verdict calling the attention of the Walthamstow local sanitary authority to the matter.

GERMAN COURT AND POLITICS.

[TELEGRAM FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

BERLIN, Nov. 4.

In reply to some remarks in the St. Petersburg Novosti forwarded by the Agence-Havas announcing that the negotiations about the Zanzibar Question had been prejudicial to the good relations existing between England and Germany, the North German Gazette inserts an entrefilet of Foreign Office authority characterising the remarks as an invention from beginning to end, and adding: "Anybody initiated in the matter knows that there can be no question of any dissensions whatever between the German and English Governments on East African affairs."

I note that my démenti of Reuter's report that von Schlözer was to be recalled from Rome is confirmed in the Cologne Gazette and other inspired journals. It is the Ultramontane Germania that is trying to create some difficulties for the Government, and as the Liberals and Ultramontanes are being pretty sharply rebuked all round, there is every probability that a more than usual display of anger and disunion will be reflected in the forthcoming sessions of the Reichstag and Landtag.

The North German Gazette, in a polemical but inspired article, corrects a statement of the Germania to the effect that in 1869 the Prussian Government, headed by the then Count Bismarck, Minister-President, assumed a hostile attitude towards the Religious Orders and the Catholic Church. The writer says that—"Although the Council was then sitting at Rome, and the sanction to the Infallibility Dogma was on the point of being given, the Minister-President, Count Bismarck, in express terms, uttered a warning against meeting the Catholic Church otherwise than in a benevolent way." For this the writer asserts that he can produce documentary evidence. The Germania has been trying to rake up the past and put the origin of the Culturkampf at Prince Bismarck's door, which the Chancellor naturally resents. The Liberal Press asks—Why does the Ultramontane Party take so much trouble to prove its case and the Government to crush its assailant? Are not the days of the Culturkampf over, or is it to be resumed? The fact is that party relations are in a very unsatisfactory state over here just now, and all seem to be pugnaciously inclined. That is why I recommended you on Friday to accept all reports about tension between Berlin and the Curia with great caution.

Sunday's Post devotes an article to the French Exhibition which ought to be read with satisfaction on the Seine. This sometimes-inspired organ wishes the undertaking success, although Germany cannot possibly have part in it, and takes trouble to point out that the French Government does not contemplate in the celebration of the Centenary of the French Revolution a glorification of all the horrors that formed the greater part of the history of its sequel, but of the results that have followed from that great movement. It is for this reason, says the writer, that the first year—the year of the outbreak—of the change was chosen.

The weather in Berlin has suddenly turned cold, and the first sign of snow was visible last night, but only in a few insignificant and almost invisible flakes.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The Reichsanzeiger this evening publishes the following statement: "The reply which the Emperor recently made to the address of the municipal authorities of Berlin, and which was published in this gazette, has, in spite of its unmistakeable clearness of meaning, given rise to misleading and malicious misrepresentations in a portion of the Berlin press, and particularly in the organs of the Freisinnige and Ultramontane parties. Since it appears that the above-named journals have made an attempt, after a preconcerted plan, to misrepresent the bearing of the Emperor's statements, his Majesty has commanded it to be explicitly declared that it is the contents and tone of the Freisinnige journals of Berlin which have wounded his feelings. From the relations in which the Berlin municipal authorities stand to this portion of the press his Majesty concluded that they would be in a position to co-operate in bringing about the cessation of the statements which have called forth his Majesty's censure, and would also be disposed to do so in response to the sentiments expressed by them in their address to the Emperor."

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—In reply to the statement made yesterday by the Reichsanzeiger the Freisinnige journals to-day declare that no preconcerted plan exists between them to misrepresent the Emperor William, and that the municipal authorities have no influence upon the attitude of the press. They express regret, moreover, that the articles which appear to have given offence to his Majesty should not have been distinctly specified.

General Gourko has issued an order that any Russian officer crossing the frontier without permission will be sent before a court-martial.

The market town of Stuposciane, in Galicia, was on Friday night the scene of a terrible tragedy. About three years ago a native of the locality left his home for America, promising his wife and children, who remained behind, that he would send them money for their journey as soon as he should earn it. About a week ago the magistrate of Stuposciane received from the United States a post-office order for 1,000 florins, accompanied by a letter, in which he was requested by the emigrant to hand over the money to his wife, and to assist her in making the necessary preparations for her journey. On receipt of the letter the magistrate paid the sum to the woman, resolving at the same time to get it back into his possession. He took his wife and eldest daughter into his confidence, and after disguising them in some of his own clothes and blacking their faces, sent them at midnight to the woman's cottage, with instructions to threaten her and her children with death should they offer any resistance. On arriving at the cottage they demanded the thousand florins. The emigrant's wife, who seems to have kept her presence of mind, told them to follow her to the stable, where, she said, she had hidden the money for safety. No sooner were the two women inside than she locked the door from without, and, taking up a hatchet for self-defence in case of need, she sent her son, a boy of eleven, for the magistrate. When the lad got there the magistrate thrashed him till life was extinct. His cries were overheard by the gendarmes, who came and placed the magistrate in irons, but not before one of them had been mortally wounded in the struggle. When the stable-door was opened the two women inside were found to have committed suicide by hanging themselves, fearful of the consequences of their intended crime.

COLLISION IN THE CHANNEL.

SUPPOSED LOSS OF TWENTY-TWO LIVES.

A Weymouth correspondent telegraphs: "This (Sunday) evening the survivors of the crews of the steamer Saxmundham, of Newcastle, Captain Milne, master, and of the Norwegian barque Nor, of Tonsberg, were landed at Weymouth and Portland, the vessels having been in collision, at two o'clock this morning, thirty miles E.N.E. of St. Catherine's Point. It appears that the steamer, which was of 1,632 tons, left Newcastle on Friday for Ancona, with coals and coke, and everything proceeded well until about two o'clock on Sunday morning, when she was run into amidships by the Nor, 796 tons, bound for Stettin, with petroleum. Almost immediately after the collision the Saxmundham's jolly-boat and the starboard lifeboat were launched, the stern of the steamer being at this time under water. A few men got into the jolly-boat and others into the lifeboat, the remainder being engaged in endeavouring to launch the port lifeboat, but, owing to the heavy sea, they were unsuccessful, and before another boat could be got out the ship foundered. Captain Milne, the second engineer, and one of the firemen were picked up by one of the boats, and efforts were made to save other men but without success. In fact it was a miracle how any were saved, as the boats were almost swamped. They cruised about and hailed the Nor's captain, but did not get any reply. The chief mate, who was in charge of the jolly-boat, warned those in the lifeboat not to go near the barque, as she appeared to be foundering, and they accordingly left her. The two boats cruised about for some time before it was decided to pull for St. Catherine's Point. It is said the jolly-boat signalled a barque and hailed her. The barque showed a light, so that it is probable that some of the missing men are on board of her; but up to the present no tidings have come to hand. At daybreak this morning the men in the lifeboat were picked up by the schooner Waterbird, and landed at Weymouth; and during the afternoon the whole of the crew of the Norwegian barque were landed at Portland. The names of the eight men belonging to the Saxmundham now at Weymouth are: Captain Milne, Mr. Nicholson (second engineer), Mr. Jackson (third engineer), Thomas Paterson (fireman), W. M'Kenzie, T. M'Farren, W. M'Alister, and E. Saunders (seaman). The steamer had a crew of thirty, all told, so that twenty-two remain to be accounted for."

Another telegram from Weymouth, received at Lloyd's, states that the remainder of the steamer's crew are supposed to have been picked up by an unknown barque.

SOFIA, Nov. 4.—The address in reply to Prince Ferdinand's speech at the opening of the Sobranje, which was presented to his Highness to-day, is a paraphrase of the Prince's declarations. It concludes by stating that the Sobranje, deeply convinced that a good internal organisation is important and essential for the State, will attentively examine the various bills and proposals that may be submitted by the Government, thus fulfilling its duty and promoting the national interests. The address concludes with the words, "Long live his Royal Highness Ferdinand, the First of Bulgaria!"

BELGRADE, Nov. 3.—The Constitutional Revision Commission, at its first sitting, held yesterday under the presidency of the King, decided not to take into consideration any special plan of revision, but to elaborate a new project. The Commission also appointed for this purpose a committee of twelve of its members, in which all three political parties are equally represented.

Monsignor Fenton, of the Catholic church of St. Thomas's, Fulham, in an appeal on behalf of some 300 poor children in his district, writes: "Badly clothed and badly fed, winter is, indeed, a cruel time for them. I ask all who can spare it to send me a little help towards enabling me to open a soup-kitchen, so that I may be able to give these poor little ones at least one good hot meal a day."

THE WINDSOR BOOK OF AUTOGRAPHS.—On Saturday afternoon, before the Berkshire County Magistrates at Windsor, Captain George Martin, of Helen Cottage, Old Windsor, was charged on remand with having stolen the visitors' book, containing the signatures of the Queen and various members of the Royal family, from the Royal Tapestry Works at Old Windsor. He was defended by Mr. Turton, barrister. The evidence given at the former hearing was read over, but no new facts were elicited for the prosecution. The prisoner's defence was that he had taken the book home for his wife to look at. For some years he had been in the habit of taking morphia, and Dr. Burnet, of the Great Northern Hospital, stated that it would be impossible for any one to take such large quantities as the prisoner was alleged to have taken without his mental faculties becoming seriously impaired. The prisoner was also charged with stealing a pair of binocular field glasses and a valuable meerschaum pipe; but with regard to these he said he knew nothing. He was committed for trial on each charge.

(Before Mr. Justice BUTT.)

ROSS (OTHERWISE ANDREWS) V. ROSS.

Mr. Middleton, who appeared for the petitioner, said that this was a suit for a declaration of nullity on the ground that the petitioner, whose name was Susannah Elizabeth Andrews, was the sister of the former wife of the respondent, so that her marriage was void. The father of the petitioner was Henry George Andrews, and he married Mary Seely, who had a daughter, the petitioner, born in 1841. He had another daughter, Gertrude, born in 1846.

Mr. Justice Butt: This is a case of a woman marrying her deceased sister's husband. It seems rather odd that two people choose to go through a ceremony, which they both knew to be illegal and void, and one comes here to ask that the marriage be annulled.

Mr. Middleton: I apprehend that she is entitled to a declaration of nullity.

Mr. Justice Butt: I am not at all clear about that. I want some authority.

Mr. Middleton: In the ordinary course of a void marriage by reason of defective publication of banns, both parties must have been cognisant of the fraudulent banns in order to justify a decree.

Mr. Justice Butt: I do not know that they must. All I can say, if it is so, I shall act according to the law; but if it exists it is a very bad law.

Mr. Middleton: The rule was that both parties must know of the informal publication of the banns in order to justify a petition for nullity. The reason of the petition was that there was some apprehension that possibly the law would sanction shortly marriages with a deceased wife's sister, and that it would be retrospective in character.

Mr. Justice Butt: A suitor must come into court with "clean hands."

After two or three cases had been cited in regard to the point at issue, it was arranged that the petitioner, Susannah Elizabeth Andrews, should be called. Accordingly she was examined. She deposed that she went through a ceremony of marriage on Dec. 19, 1876, at St. Mary's, Lambeth, with Mr. Frederick Mackenzie Ross, the respondent. She was present when he married her sister Gertrude, which ceremony took place on June 6, 1871, at Chiltham, Hampshire.

Mr. Justice Butt: I will reserve my decision.

MULES V. MULES.

This was the petition of the wife for a divorce by reason of the alleged cruelty and misconduct of her husband, the Rev. William Mules, formerly of Eccles, Lancashire. There was no defence.

Mr. Pritchard, who appeared for the petitioner, said that the parties were married at a Wesleyan chapel at Rusholme on Nov. 28, 1882. They lived together happily until June, 1885, when the respondent, who was then a clergyman, made the acquaintance of Miss Brackenridge, a professional singer, who was a member of his congregation. He became infatuated with this lady, and from that time down to last year he neglected and ill-treated his wife. On Feb. 20 last he told her that he was going to a clerical meeting at Accrington, but he never returned. He was now in New York. As to the charge of misconduct, it mainly rested for identification upon photographs.

Mr. Justice Butt: You know that will not do, because the Court never acts upon such identification solely.

Mrs. Mary Margaret Mules, the petitioner, deposed that after the marriage she lived with her husband at Warrington, and subsequently at Eccles, where he was formerly vicar of a Reformed church. There were two children of the marriage. The respondent made the acquaintance of Miss Jessie Brackenridge, to whom he paid considerable attention, subsequently neglecting witness. In July, 1887, he came home the worse for drink, and flung her into a chair with much violence. In August, 1887, they were at the Isle of Man with the Brackenridges, when she had to complain of his conduct with Miss Brackenridge. Owing to his conduct with that lady witness became hysterical. In the evening he pulled her off the bed, threw her down, and attempted to strike her. He also threw her violently into a chair. After a concert at Eccles, at which Miss Brackenridge sang, he was in a violent rage with witness, held his clenched fists over her, and dared her to speak. He had sworn at her and had violently shaken her. On one occasion he sharpened his razor and stood before one of the children, who was asleep, in a threatening attitude.

Mr. Justice Butt: That is a distinct act of cruelty, and of barbarous cruelty.

Examination continued: At Eccles he showed her a revolver with some cartridges, and said he would shoot any one he found watching him with Miss Brackenridge. On Feb. 20 last he left her, stating that he was going to speak at a public meeting at Accrington, and afterwards meet "a ministerial friend." He had never since returned.

Corroborative evidence having been given of the cruelty, testimony was adduced to the effect that on Feb. 20 last a lady and gentleman came and stayed the night at the Royal Hotel, Burscough, near Ormskirk, the gentleman, who was dressed as a clergyman, giving the name of Marshall. The identification, however, was by means of photographs, whereupon the learned judge said that that would not do.

Ultimately the petitioner was granted a decree of judicial separation by reason of her husband's cruelty, with costs, and custody of the children.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

GUILDHALL.—HORSERACING.—Ernest Chapman, 28, clerk, of 195, Liverpool-road, was accused of falsifying the accounts of his employer, Mr. Frank Blofield, meat salesman, of the Central Meat Market.—The prisoner gave himself up at Snow-hill Police-station on Friday evening, and stated that he had spent all the money on horseracing.—It was stated that the defalcations amounted to £2,000.—The Alderman granted a remand.

WESTMINSTER.—"AS BAD AS IT WELL CAN BE." John Ralph Blackwell, 21, a tall, well-dressed young man, described as a solicitor's clerk, and said to be well connected, was charged on remand before Mr. Partridge with stealing £2 from a young woman named Annie Russell, living at 27, Maude-grove, Chelsea.—Mr. E. D. Rymer defended.—When the case was first before the Court the prosecutrix, a stylishly dressed young woman, said she formerly lived with the prisoner, but she was then residing with a young gentleman who passed as Mr. Russell. The accused, however, still called on her, and after one of his visits, when no one went into her front room, she missed two sovereigns from her purse, which she had left on the mantel-piece.—Detective-sergeant Weidner said the prisoner had been previously convicted. He had influential friends at Leicester, was brought up as a gentleman, and could have done well, but he consorted with prostitutes and thieves, and was nightly to be found about the Haymarket. The magistrate severely censured Blackwell, who refused the offer of his friends to go abroad, and further remanded him, remarking that he could not commit him as the case then stood. On Saturday the prosecutrix attended on summons, and, cross-examined by Mr. Rymer, she said that the prisoner lived with her three years ago, but she gave him up because she had to keep him. The young man she was living with at present allowed her £3 a week. Sometimes she was out late at night, or, rather, early in the morning. She once before charged the prisoner with robbing her, but she did not appear against him, as he sent a man to threaten her. He generally came to her place in Maude-grove when he was "hard up," and she had left him money. She had been on friendly terms with him since she charged him with robbing her, and about a week before she gave him in custody she accompanied him and Mr. Kay, the gentleman with whom she was living, to a French house in Dean-street, in the early morning. There was a scene there, as it was alleged that Mr. Kay was a policeman or spy, and he made a hurried retreat. She had not since threatened to injure the prisoner for originating the rumour that Mr. Kay was a spy. They went to the place, which was called a club, to get drink during prohibited hours.—Louisa Hughes, daughter of the landlady at 27, Maude-grove, said there were only respectable people in the house. Prisoner came there not infrequently as a friend of "Mr. and Mrs. Russell," and he dined with them.—Cross-examined: Mr. and Mrs. Russell breakfasted between eleven and two.—Thomas Claxton Kay said he lived with the prosecutrix in the name of Russell. He first met the prisoner when at Brighton, two years ago. He gave the woman the two sovereigns which Blackwell was charged with stealing.—Cross-examined: A young woman, who went by the name of Daisy Young, once gave him (witness) in custody for stealing a £5 note, but the inspector at Vine-street refused the charge.—In the presence of witnesses, to account for not keeping an appointment with the prosecutrix, he told her that he had been locked up for stealing a bag from the St. James's Restaurant. There was no truth in this assertion.—Mr. Rymer asked whether it was a case to go further. He was not appearing as an apologist for the prisoner, but he would remind his worship that last week he was inclined to discharge him.—Mr. Partridge: Only because the prosecutrix did not appear. This young man's career is as bad as it can well be. He lives with prostitutes, associates with convicted thieves, and his friends can do nothing with him. The case is very much strengthened by the evidence to-day, and I shall commit him for trial at the Middlesex Sessions. Bail was refused.

DALSTON.—RAID ON A FIREWORK FACTORY.—William Seal, a cripple, of 2, Duncan-square, Hackney, was summoned before Mr. Bros for unlawfully manufacturing fireworks contrary to the Explosives Act, 1875.—Mr. Roberts prosecuted for the Metropolitan Board of Works.—James Gibbons, an inspector of the board, said he went to 2, Duncan-square (one of a number of four-roomed houses in a cul de sac, and in the midst of a densely-populated neighbourhood), and found Seal in an upper room (9ft by 7ft), surrounded by implements used in the manufacture of fireworks, and numerous small packages of explosives. There were also some fireworks ready for sale. An unprotected fire was burning brightly in the grate not four feet from the table on which the explosives were. There were, in fact, explosives nearer than this to the fire, viz., under the bed. The landlady of the house said she thought Seal was a toymaker, and was very indignant when she discovered the peril in which she and her four children had been placed.—Seal: Well, the inspector has taken my little tools, and I cannot do it again. I shall have to go to the workhouse.—Mr. Bros: You have committed a very serious offence—one for which you are liable to a penalty of £100 per day, but I will fine you £5, or one month's imprisonment, the whole of the articles seized to be confiscated.

GREENWICH.—THE "ELDER OF THE KIRK" AND HIS LODGER.—Thomas Forster, 33, solicitor's clerk, was charged on a warrant with assaulting Thomas M'Bride, of 1, Carlton-square, New-cross.—Prosecutor, a commission agent, said that on Sept. 24, between eleven and twelve at night, he was asleep in bed, when the prisoner, who lodged with him, came and struck him with his fist a dozen times. He also hit witness's wife. Prisoner was under notice to quit at the time. He did not strike the prisoner or give him any provocation.—Cross-examined: He did not think he was addicted to drink. He declined to say whether he lived unhappily with his wife. On the day in question he did not say she was "the biggest devil out of hell." (Laughter.) His face had never been "marked" by his wife, nor had he taken refuge in the defendant's room to escape her violence.—Prisoner: I am sorry to hear you, an elder of the kirk, say so.—Mrs. M'Bride deposed that on the night of Sept 24 she was in her parlour, when the prisoner, who had always been very polite to her, came and struck her in the mouth, knocking three teeth out. She "crawled" into the bed-room, and saw him strike her "poor little husband." (Laughter.) She thought he was provoked by receiving notice to quit.—Cross-examined: The teeth knocked out were false ones. (Laughter.)—Police-constable 20 PR, deposed to being called to the house. Prisoner said the prosecutor and his wife had been fighting, and that was how they got injured. The neighbours seemed of the same opinion.—Mr. Marsham remanded the accused on bail.

NEW CONSERVATIVE ORGANISATION.—A conference was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Saturday night, with the object of establishing a National Benefit Society and a Conservative Working Men's National Defence, Liberty, and Justice League. Mr. Baumann, M.P., who presided, explained the objects of the movement, and went on to comment on the Sackville incident. In order to win Irish support the United States Government had stooped to an act of gross vulgarity and barbarous insolence to her Majesty's ambassador which placed it beyond the pale of civilised politics. For the low and paltry purpose of catching the Irish vote the President of the United States had turned her Majesty's ambassador out of doors with as little ceremony as a publican ejected a drunken potboy. What he wished them to mark about that incident was, that in America the short, plain way to get the Irish vote was to assume a foaming hatred towards England, and to load England with insults, and that was a significant commentary on that union of hearts between English and Irish parties about which they heard so much from Separatist leaders. Resolutions were passed expressing confidence in the Government and in support of the associations, the speakers including Mr. R. G. Webster, M.P., who said that the Conservatives were stronger in the North-west of London than they were in 1886.

THE GUERNSEY WATERWORKS COMPANY (Limited).

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

Guernsey contains a resident population of over 32,000 inhabitants, and is a popular resort for tourists and visitors. Saint Peter Port, the principal town, is a thriving place, with a large harbour and a registered tonnage of over 17,000 tons, an increasing population of 17,000 inhabitants, and a ratable capital value of over £3,000,000. In the island are an enormous number of vineries and glasshouses, used for early fruit and flower growing, an industry which has already reached very large dimensions, and is rapidly increasing.

[illegible]

THE GUERNSEY WATERWORKS COMPANY (Limited).—The district to be first supplied contains 35,000 persons. It includes St. Peter Port, St. Sampson's, and the chief fruit and flower growing centres. There are about 300 growers owning over 600 vineries and hothouses, covering at least 100 acres, and a large number of greenhouses. The advantage of a regular and constant supply at high pressure to these houses will naturally prove an enormous convenience and economy.

Some idea of the rapid growth of the fruit and flower trade will be seen from the following figures:

Number of Baskets of Produce Exported	1882.	1884.	1886.	1887.*	To end of Sept., 1888
	54,940	114,000	173,000	190,000	†

* This year the production was checked by the drought, water being scarce.

† The returns for 1888 are not yet made up, but are greatly in excess of 1887.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.

CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.

CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.

"I feel duty bound to inform you of the wonderful effects of Clarke's Blood Mixture on me. I have had suffering over two years of a severe nature. I first consulted the best medical aid I could possibly procure for over six months, till my means were run out, and with a sad heart I was compelled to come into the workhouse hospital, where I now am. I had been here 15 months, and my legs gradually got worse. I began to think they would never get better, till about five months ago I read in a copy of the Hull, East Yorkshire, and Lincolnshire Times of 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and I determined that when I could raise the means I would try it; so I commenced to deprive myself of little necessaries till at length I had raised eleven shillings. I got my sister to purchase me a large bottle. She brought me one in on May 5, and to my surprise she brought me 1s. 9d. back, which enabled me to purchase two small pots of your Miraculous Salve. I commenced to use the Blood Mixture on May 7. I then had five wounds on the left leg, one very large on the ankle-bone, one on the shin about the size of half-a-crown, and three on the calf almost as large. The right leg was somewhat similar, but there were three sores which I thought would break into one, but all are perfectly healed up now but one small place on the left ankle about the size of a shilling. There are 15 patients in the ward that I am in, and they were surprised to see my legs when I had taken the mixture a week, and there are three of them now using it. I am very sorry, indeed, that I cannot purchase another bottle. You may judge for yourself how I am fixed, after being in here 15 months. My sister, Mrs. Bulmer, lives at No. 36, Grimsby-lane, Market-place, Hull, and if you would kindly send me a small quantity of your Mixture to the above address I should be able to get it, and I shall never forget you as long as I live.—Yours faithfully, "EDWARD STATHAMS. "No. 6 Ward, Anlaby-road Workhouse Hospital, Hull, June 13, 1888."

LATER.

"I write to let you know how I am getting on. I received the bottle of Mixture you sent me, and the wounds are now completely healed up. I will be out of here in a few days, and get to work, which is already promised me. I am going to reside at my sister's, Mrs. Bulmer. If you wish to use this case for the benefit of other poor sufferers, do so. The results of your Mixture is really wonderful.—I remain, your thankful servant, June 26, 1888. "EDWARD STATHAMS."

THOUSANDS of TESTIMONIALS.

Messrs. A. John and Co., Druggists, &c., Agra, India, write under date June 5, 1888, as follows: "Dr. Mookund Lal, Hon. Surgeon to his Excellency the Viceroy of India, prescribes Clarke's Blood Mixture largely, and speaks highly of its efficacy in skin affections, &c. On this account we wrote our London agents, asking if you could supply the Mixture for dispensing purposes."

LONDON, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 5.

It now appears that in the recent wreckage of the Imperial train near Borki both the Czar and the Czarina were hurt. Our Vienna correspondent states that it is considered by competent authorities that the so-called "accident" was occasioned by the springing of a mine, probably of dynamite.

Before leaving Wolverhampton, on Saturday, Mr. Balfour received more than 500 addresses from Conservative delegates from various parts of the kingdom, acknowledging the efficacy of his administration of Irish affairs and expressing confidence in her Majesty's Government. The right hon. gentleman said he and his colleagues derived strength and encouragement from the great meetings they had held in that town. Their policy, he added, was that of a united Cabinet, and of more than one of the traditional parties in the State.

Speaking at Openshaw, near Manchester, on Saturday, Earl Granville briefly touched on the unfortunate incident that had arisen with regard to our Envoy at Washington, observing that he hoped the Foreign Office would treat the question with dignity and conciliation. His lordship proceeded to attack the Sugar Bounties Convention, which he believed to be fraught with mischief, and afforded an example of a dangerous encroachment on the principles of Free Trade.

Lord Arthur Hill, M.P., in recognition of his efforts to secure the success of the Irish Exhibition, was on Saturday presented with a service of plate by the exhibitors.

Lady de Keyser, the Lady Mayoress, was on Saturday presented with a diamond bracelet and earrings by the Court of Common Council, in remembrance of her courtesy and kindness at the Mansion House during the mayoralty of her husband.

Early yesterday morning the British steamer Saxmundham and the Norwegian barque Nor were in collision off St. Catherine's Point, in the English Channel. The steamer foundered, and the barque was abandoned. Twenty-two men of the Saxmundham are still missing; the remaining eight have been landed at Weymouth, and all the crew of the Nor at Portland.

Captain George Martin was committed for trial by the Berkshire justices on Saturday on the charge of stealing the visitors' book, containing signatures of the Royal family, from the Tapestry Works at Old Windsor.

On Saturday the stock markets opened dull, but a recovery ensued before the close. Home, Canadian, and Mexican railways left off firm, while American lines receded. Amongst Foreign Government bonds, Uruguay and Peruvian improved, and several others gave way. Copper and diamond shares were irregular. Consols declined ⅛ per cent.

To-morrow Parliament reassembles to complete the legislation of the year. Autumn Sessions up to the present instance have been reserved for a national crisis, or, as in 1882, to perform a special work like the reform of Procedure. This is the first time the Legislature has been called together again because it left the proper business before it unfinished when it went away for its holiday in August. At most schools boys who have not fulfilled their tasks are "kept in," and former leaders of the House have accelerated legislation by intimating that Parliament would not be prorogued until the Bills before the House were "put through." This year another form of punishment has been devised. The Members—some travelling abroad and others amusing themselves in the country—have been called back to the fogs of London in November to take up the work they would not complete during the spring and summer. We should prefer ourselves to see evils of obstruction and delay met by a more systematic application of the Closure and a greater retrenchment of verbosity; but anything, even an Autumn Session, is better than the dropping of useful measures because the Opposition conspire to offer them an evasive or passive resistance. It must be remembered that party feeling runs high in this country, and that the factious members of the Separatist alliance are ready to throw every obstacle in the way of a Unionist Administration, even when it introduces measures which they heartily approve. They do not like to see a Government they denounce as bad obtaining credit for the carrying through of good legislation. It is, therefore, necessary for the Treasury Bench to read these gentlemen a lesson, and to teach them that their dilatory tactics of the earlier part of the year may delay, but cannot defeat, useful legislation. We shall not see the effect of the experiment until next year. The Leader of the House, if met by an unusual amount of obstructiveness, can allow the offenders a peep at "the rod"—another Autumn Session. The defect of this mode of punishment is that it includes the majority who have not sinned in the sufferings of the minority whose offences have incurred condemnation, and Parliament will perhaps be finally forced into more business-like ways of dealing with the work before it. A larger amount of delegation to standing committees, restriction of speech-making by individual Members who are not representative of any considerable section of the House, and discouragement by the House itself of all long harangues even from political leaders—would diminish the delays that now take place, and obviate the necessity of that rather cumbrous remedy for obstruction—a Supplementary Session.

Public interest in this second meeting of Parliament was never likely to be great, for the Bills left over, though useful, are not very important. There are, however, two other reasons why the country should regard with a rather languid eye the reopening of the debates at Westminster. The proceedings before the PARNELL Commission attract a large amount of curiosity, and the dramatic interest of the trial deepens every week. Then the appearance of Mr. GLADSTONE at Birmingham draws upon the metropolis of the Midlands the eyes of all the politicians in England. As time advances the personal rather than the political element in Mr. GLADSTONE's performances becomes more fascinating. He was a marvellous old man five years ago, his feats of oratory and endurance surpassing all that was ever achieved by any Englishman of his age. But he is now close upon his eightieth year, and he is announced to address at Bingley Hall one of the largest indoor audiences he ever faced. The floor will hold ten thousand persons; the galleries four or five thousand more. The interest of the occasion, however, is not limited to the fact that the oldest and one of the most distinguished statesmen in the world comes to address a great public meeting of his countrymen. This is the first time that he has appeared in Birmingham since his new departure in 1886. The great Midland city has been for years the metropolis of advanced Liberalism. It organised the Political Unions in 1832. It has been represented for many years by JOHN BRIGHT, whose orations have rung out from its fine Town Hall, and have been echoed throughout the land. It first sent to Parliament the man who, three years ago, was the rising hope of the popular cause, who in the imagination of all Liberals was to take up the flag of the party when Mr. GLADSTONE dropped it and to carry it forward to new and splendid victories. This city, the Mecca of English Radicalism for more than fifty years, has declared by an immense majority against the Irish policy of Mr. GLADSTONE, returning six Liberal-Unionists at the last election, and for the first time in its history one Conservative. The recent municipal elections show that the Gladstonians of the city are losing, not gaining, ground, and it is obvious that Birmingham is still Unionist to the core, that it still reveres JOHN BRIGHT, and adheres to the person and policy of Mr. CHAMBERLAIN. Mr. GLADSTONE's visit has, therefore, all the piquancy that attaches to an incursion upon enemy's soil. It is an invasion—or, if the metaphor be not allowable, it is a missionary enterprise—the great apostle of Separation coming to convert Unionist Birmingham from the error of its ways. That the whole population of the city will receive him with respect goes without saying. The Unionists do not forget the past services of the men from whom they have been forced to part; they do not treat Mr. GLADSTONE with the political ingratitude that has characterised the Separatist treatment of men like Lord HARTINGTON, Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, and Mr. BRIGHT. They are sure to listen with patience and politeness to a public speaker marvellous in the flow of his words and astonishing in the vigour of his old age. We are, therefore, a little surprised that the managers of the Bingley Hall gathering should have made it not an open but a ticket meeting. Time was when the leaders of Liberalism throughout England always boasted that ticket meetings were the device of Tories, who dared not admit the people in the mass to their political assemblies. The explanation was simple enough. If the meetings had been free, the local wire-pullers could have easily hired forty or fifty men to disturb the proceedings. The Americans say that "one hornet in fair health can upset a camp meeting of five thousand men," and a very small leaven of dissent can destroy the comfort of a vast mass of enthusiastic supporters. Even the cheers that drown the hisses interrupt the oratory; and "He who in quest of quiet 'Silence!' hoots, Doth make himself the hubbub he imputes." We do not believe, however, that the precaution of tickets was necessary to ensure to Mr. GLADSTONE a cordial greeting and respectful attention from men of all opinions in Birmingham. They differ from his new programme, but they remember his fruitful past and appreciate his good intentions. There was no necessity, therefore, for the care taken to pack the hall with Gladstonians pure and simple.

The resolutions to be moved at Birmingham this week are advanced and varied enough to suggest that the Gladstonian party feel the necessity of offering the English Democracy dishes newer than the perpetual Irish stew. In addition to the usual demand for Repeal and the customary attack on coercion, we have a denunciation of the extension of Lord ASHBOURNE's Act. The success of that measure has been remarkable not only in turning discontented tenants into satisfied freeholders, but in immediately tranquillising any district where it has been generally adopted. Those farmers who have bought their holdings cease to take any further interest in the Land League, and this is very painful to the gentlemen who make a trade of agitation. The process steadily applied and judiciously extended is the one permanent remedy for the social ills of Ireland, and illustrates anew the far-sighted statesmanship of JOHN BRIGHT. He suggested the plan in 1870, but his clauses were marred in their execution by restrictions and red tape; had they been liberally applied and resolutely carried out there would be no land question left now to occupy the attention of Parliament. It is natural that Mr. GLADSTONE and his friends should object to the Conservative extension of Mr. BRIGHT's plan; for without an Irish land question where would the present Opposition find weapons of attack upon the Treasury Bench? No doubt it is some forecast of the decline of English interest in peasants who are the spoiled children of law, and who enjoy privileges which no other tenants on the face of the earth can ever claim, that has induced the managers at Birmingham to put forward a programme of British questions. They endorse a Welsh demand for "the disestablishment and disendowment of the English Church in Wales." They insist that no man should have two votes; that the duration of Parliaments should be shortened; and that expenses of elections should be placed on the rates. They demand also that all schools should be free; that the working classes should be better housed; and that the Allotments Acts should be extended. Many of these reforms are good in themselves, and we are not going to discuss them now; but we would call attention to some of the consequences. If we make all Board schools free, we throw upon the rates alone the whole cost of the education of the children of England—a cost now met by taxes, school pence, and subscriptions, as well as by local rates. No voluntary schools can exist without school pence, and it would be impossible to collect any if the neighbouring Board schools were made free. Therefore, that programme carried out would mean a vast increase of rates and the downfall of every voluntary school in England. With them would go all the subscriptions of parson and squire, merchant and shopkeeper, and all the grants now made by the Privy Council. Up would go the rates in every city, town, and county to meet the millions thus lost, and the local burdens would be in many cases trebled. Thus the principal measure recommended at Birmingham means heavier burdens on the householders of England in order to gratify a Secularist horror of general religious teaching in Board schools. But will "Down with the Bible and up with the rates!" be a good election cry?

In the earliest days of railway enterprise in this country, it was no uncommon occurrence for the surveyors of a projected line to be driven off the land by infuriated inhabitants, who entertained a natural, if erroneous, prejudice against the iron horse. There were other engineers who, like STEPHENSON, had occasionally to carry on their surveys by night, in order to escape being impaled on the pitchforks of irate rustics hounded on by ignorant farmers or land-owners. It is a mistake to suppose that the locomotive was welcomed from the very start by Englishmen. On the contrary, few improvements of the century have met with more determined and obstinate opposition, and that not merely from stage-coach proprietors, the owners of roadside hostelries, and others interested in the continuance of the pre-Stephensonian methods of vehicular traffic, but from every rank and profession. It was no less erudite a body than the University of Oxford which compelled the Great Western Railway to deflect its main line to the west, so as to avoid the academical city on the banks of Isis—a feat which the modern burgesses of the place look back upon with feelings of mingled regret and disgust. An infinite number of stories are told about the mistakes which the first railway passengers made, and the misapprehensions under which they laboured, even in Europe. There was the old lady, for example, who met with a bad railway accident, and who lay contentedly at the bottom of a wreck of iron and woodwork, remarking to the officials that she thought that was the way in which they usually stopped. What relation she bore to the other prehistoric female, who hung up an umbrella on the telegraph wires, under the impression that it would be forwarded by electricity to her son, history fails to record. After all, however, English people are too enlightened to have ever welcomed the triumphs of science in exactly the same fashion as that just recorded of some passengers on the first railway that has been constructed in Persia. Ten miles or so of rails have recently been laid down at Teheran, which are intended as the beginning of a line that will some day connect the Persian capital with the shores of the Caspian Sea. From an incident which has just occurred at the Teheran Railway terminus it is evident that the subjects of the Shah have not yet become quite accustomed to the idea of railway locomotion. The story combines the tragic with the comic in such a way that the latter element altogether conquers. One of the travellers on Saturday last "alighted from the carriage while the train was still in motion," to adopt the stereotyped formula in vogue in this country. Whether he got frightened at the rapidity and strangeness of the motion is not stated; at all events he jumped from the train, and unfortunately was crushed beneath the wheels. His fellow-passengers at once flew to the conclusion that it was all the fault of the engine-driver, and, as the hapless and fatally injured individual had many friends in the train, a riot at once ensued. The engine-driver was first reproached, and then actually attacked; and in self-defence he was obliged to fire with a revolver into the crowd, with the result that one man was killed and a woman dangerously injured. This is certainly an infelicitous start for railway management in Persia, and will make the shareholders—if there be any—in the newly opened line tremble for their chance of dividends.

After the engine-driver had fired his revolver with the disastrous effect already mentioned, the attitude of the crowd of passengers is described as having become "threatening." It must have been something more, for every railway employé at once fled precipitately, guards, porters, signalmen, and all, with the engine-driver probably at their head. There was nobody left to collect the tickets, and nobody to guide the engine in the direction of the Caspian. On the contrary, the passengers were left masters both of the situation and of the train itself, and they proceeded to evince their displeasure at the occurrences of the morning by wrecking the train and damaging the station. Great excitement is said—not unnaturally—to have prevailed while these stirring events were going on, and eventually the authorities had to step in and restore order with a high hand. The fury of the passengers and people, however, had not cooled down, and a renewal of disturbances was feared. It seems perfectly evident from this story that if anything goes wrong with a passenger on a Persian train his fellows will at once attribute the affair to original sin on the part of the driver, and will adopt a spirited Asian variation of Lynch law. It will be of no use under such circumstances for the driver to plead contributory negligence by the passenger, or to refer his interlocutors to the board of directors for further explanations. Nor will he effect much by demonstrating that the handles over which he presides have nothing whatever to do with the fate of a passenger who is foolish enough to leap from a vehicle while in motion, and is in consequence run over. These scientific explanations will be looked upon as the merest subterfuges, and as an aggravation of the original offence, and the wretched driver may have to pay with his life for the ignorance of the passengers whom he carries behind him. Two results will follow from this lack of appreciation of the intricacies of train management on the part of an average Persian passenger. Engine-drivers will be difficult to secure at any price; and, when an accident does happen on a Persian railway, it is morally certain that the officials will not stay to see whether the travellers are injured or not, but will incontinently make for the first place of refuge that they can find. And, as long as such mistaken notions of the responsibility for accidents prevail as are obviously now held by Persian citizens, the fugitive staff of employés will not be very much to blame. It used to be a humorous commonplace among ourselves that the only sure way of making railway catastrophes few and far between was to hang a director each time an accident occurred. "MR. PUNCH" once drew a fancy sketch of a director tied to the buffers of an engine which was careering through space; but the idea of lynching the driver is quite a new departure in railway annals.

It might be expected that the prospects of the Teheran line had now received an almost fatal blow after the conflict of last week; but in time the Teheranese will no doubt settle down into a rather juster estimate of where the responsibility lies for the death of a passenger who takes a flying leap from an express; and, moreover, the prospects of the initial railway undertaking in the Shah's dominions could hardly be darker than they are. When the line was begun it was supposed that the Persians, like other Orientals, would welcome the locomotive, feeling that it introduced novelty and variety into their lives. There is hardly a more popular institution among the natives of British India than the railway train, a journey in which is regarded as a privilege, and looked forward to as a treat. From a commercial point of view, however, the Teheran line seems to have a good deal to be desired. There are about two hundred miles dividing the capital from the Caspian, and a lofty chain of mountains lies between; yet the contractors have taken the trouble to drag the railway plant overland from Russia on the backs of camels, horses, and donkeys, right to Teheran, instead of beginning at the other end. The natural result is that the construction of even the short ten miles already opened for traffic has been tremendously expensive, and is estimated at one hundred thousand pounds. This may be pleasing to the Shah, but it can hardly be a matter for congratulation to those who wish to see Persia joined by means of railway communication with the civilisation of the West. The first railway established in Persia seems, as a matter of fact, to be hardly better than a very expensive sort of toy. When dolls grow ragged, or thin from loss of sawdust, children too often punish them by a process of summary execution; and in the same way the Persian populace, when a train does not quite answer their expectations, wreck not only it but the station as well. It is excessively childish, no doubt, but it is highly characteristic of the spirit in which "the devil's own team," as the Northern Farmer called it, is welcomed in those Eastern countries which are both bigoted and ignorant. Happy, indeed, the line of railway which has no history at all resembling that of this Teheran plaything. The fact that the promoters found it necessary to begin at the wrong end of the line—at the capital instead of at the place where the rails were disembarked—seems to show that there must have been political reasons for so absurd a course being adopted. Was it that the Shah refused to allow a railway in his dominions at all unless it was laid down within sight of his palace windows? A Belgian syndicate, with a number of Russians interested therein, ought to have been better business men than to squander money, to the tune of some fifty thousand pounds, in land carriage which might easily have been avoided. Whatever may be the explanation, it is only too apparent that the Teheran Railway has begun badly, and that traffic returns are not likely to be very heavy if all engine-drivers are treated as was the official who drove the train last week. MARK TWAIN has given it as his opinion that persons in want of excitement could hardly do better than drive a coach in one of the mountainous districts in the Western States; but the occupation of driving a train in Persia appears greatly to surpass even Rocky Mountain coach-steering in the element of spirit-stirring novelty and personal peril.

It was fondly imagined, in times gone by, that the Home of the Revolver was in the Southern and the Far Western States of America, and that it was on the shores of the Mississippi and beyond the Rocky Mountains that the maleficent invention of Colonel COLT—if an ingenious development of a mediæval weapon can be called an invention—found its greatest favour as a disturber of the public peace. To judge, however, from the latest chronicles of the six-shooter, the use of this detestable weapon by Texan cowboys, border ruffians, and frontier "greasers" would appear to be comparatively restricted, in view of the lawless liberality with which the many-chambered pistol is now employed in Europe as an engine for the swift and sure destruction of human life. A glance at the newspapers of Saturday will afford significant proof that the revolver is making its way merrily among almost every class in Continental society. Now the incidents with which this lethal tool is associated are of a grimly grotesque nature; now they are of a simply bloodthirsty character. Yet whether the details of a revolver encounter comprise some semi-burlesque incident, or whether they mean nothing but foul and deliberate murder, the conclusion to which common sense leads us is the same. The advantages possessed by the revolver as an implement of offence in war or as a means of defence against the burglar or the footpad, are largely counterbalanced by the peril which its indiscriminate use presents to the well-being of civilised society. This infernal instrument has done but questionable good in warlike operations, while in innumerable instances it has been made to serve the purposes of intimidation, plunder, and homicide. Within the last day or two the revolver has played a conspicuous and ghastly part in three widely differing transactions. In Paris a gasconading, dissolute young banker's clerk, who was no more entitled to carry a revolver in his pocket than to wheel a mitrailleuse about the public thoroughfares, is in custody for an escapade half bombastic, half sanguinary, in the house of a woman of loose reputation on whom he had squandered his money. On repairing to the apartments of the "demi-mondaine" he found her in the company of a painter of more notoriety than fame. The infuriated banker's clerk began by drawing a sword-stick and hacking, hewing, and prodding the furniture with the blade; then he drew a revolver and fired twice, it would seem, at random. Upon this the artist produced his own revolver—since when have the gentlemen of the palette taken to carrying pistols about them?—the banker's clerk fired three times at the painter, who followed suit by discharging his weapon five times at the clerk; and it is only a matter of surprise that the cocotte did not "cut in" with a dainty little toy revolver of her own, enriched with silver and mother-of-pearl, and pop a ball-cartridge into something or somebody. In the end the banker's clerk, who had received three slight flesh-wounds, ran away to the nearest railway station, and took the train for Rouen. He returned, however, to Paris, and on his arrival was arrested.

Quite as disgraceful, but a little more squalid in its motives and incidents, was the shooting affray which took place in the heart of London on Thursday afternoon last, when one KAVANAGH fired a revolver at a person named LANE. As the case is under judicial investigation it would be improper to say at present any more about its merits than that the quarrel arose from the proceedings of the PARNELL Commission, connected with which one of the men had been subpœnaed as a witness, and that both, with a number of companions, had been drinking at a public-house near the Law Courts, when they came to words, and so to blows. Witnesses connected with law-suits have from time immemorial been in the habit of drinking at taverns hard by the courts, and it is by no means a rare occurrence for the friends of the plaintiff to fall out with those of the defendant or vice versâ, and for wordy strife to terminate with a bout of fisticuffs, sometimes accentuated, when the disputants are Irish, by the active use of the shillelagh. It is, however, almost if not entirely unprecedented, at least in this country, that so deadly a weapon as the revolver should be made use of as a political argument while a trial is in progress, and on the very verge of the QUEEN's Palace of Justice. The drawing of swords in Westminster Hall in days when every gentleman went armed was justly esteemed a most flagrant contempt of Court; and, although the scandalous shooting affair at the public-house in the Strand did not precisely take place within the precincts of the High Court of Justice, the very occurrence of such an audacious outrage must practically be held as a grave affront to the QUEEN's Justiciars. But we have not yet done with the chronicle of the revolver which distinguished the conclusion of last week. About five o'clock on Thursday afternoon a person living in Beaumont-street, Marylebone, was alarmed by the noise of four shots fired in rapid succession and accompanied by the screams of a woman. The woman herself, the wife of a foreign tailor, came running out of doors exclaiming that her husband had attempted to murder her. He had, she explained, chased her up and down stairs, from the kitchen to the bedroom, firing at her through locked doors. The police entered the house; and in the kitchen they found the tailor lying on the floor, stone dead, and weltering in his blood. He had fired the contents of the last chamber of the revolver into his mouth. Whether this homicidal desperado was mad or drunk when he tried to murder his wife, and ultimately slew himself, it will be for a coroner's jury to determine. The only business that we have with the case is to point out that this suicidal tailor had no more right to have a revolver in his possession than the profligate bank clerk, or the sensational painter, or the PARNELL Commission witness. The carrying of pistols by civilians is a wholly modern and most monstrous custom. This journal was the first to denounce the practice; we have returned to the charge over and over again; nor shall we cease to reiterate it until stringent legislative measures have been adopted to put an end to a senseless and mischievous habit directly dangerous to life and limb.

We can conceive instances in which it is justifiable, or at least excusable, for civilians to have revolvers in their dwellings, just as, in the days before COLT, people who lived in the suburbs, or were the occupants of lonely farmhouses, used to keep a pair of horse-pistols or a blunderbuss hanging over the chimneypiece. The carrying of a revolver on the person is quite another matter; and it is distinctly a cowardly, bloodthirsty, and un-English habit. In olden times, when the roads near the Metropolis swarmed with highwaymen, the mail-coach guards were very properly armed to the teeth; but it was with the extremest rarity that the passengers carried pistols. Even in the case of individuals travelling in their own carriages or by postchaise, to be armed was rather the exception than the rule. The travellers wisely preferred to take their chance of being robbed instead of running the risk of being murdered as well as plundered, since it was a matter of absolute certainty that the highwayman himself would be fully armed. Whatever excuse, in any case, there may be for keeping arms at home as a protection against burglars, or for going armed when proceeding on a dangerous expedition, there can be no possible plea in extenuation of the carrying of revolvers by persons living in the QUEEN's peace, filling no posts which expose them to normal risks, and who, if unexpectedly assaulted, need and should be allowed no more formidable means of defence than a stout walking-stick. It has come to this—that idiots and lunatics, topers maddened by delirium tremens, choleric tailors and cobblers, vainglorious clerks, bombastic barbers, discontented old maids, widows who have had losses, and feather-brained hobbledehoys have all taken to carrying revolvers in their pockets; and these horrible weapons are being continually discharged, sometimes with a murderous, sometimes with a suicidal intent, and occasionally in sheer wanton foolhardiness. The thing, we repeat, and will repeat as often as is necessary, must be stopped. Already Judges and magistrates have endorsed our strictures, and have incidentally agreed with the remedy which we have suggested; still a law sternly and succinctly dealing with the revolver nuisance remains unframed. The necessity for taking decisive action in this matter was pointed out in the House of Commons to the Home Secretary; but MR. MATTHEWS returned one of his usual perfunctory replies, and "failed to see" that it was necessary to do anything to abrogate the scandal in question. Peaceable folk are getting heartily sick and tired of official apathy and imbecility. The indiscriminate carrying of revolvers has grown to be a perfect curse to English society; it is spreading murder, suicide, and outrage broadcast; and the evil can only be met by the most stringent measures of repression. Let the proprietors of revolvers be registered; and let no person be placed on the register until he can show his right to possess such a weapon, which should be numbered, and let infraction of the law be made a misdemeanour punishable by fine and imprisonment. It is not permissible to sell poisons indiscriminately, simply because the Legislature has arrived at the wise conviction that it is not expedient to sell to anybody with a few pence in his pocket the means of procuring death. What else but death is sold when the tradesman coolly hands to a perfect stranger, often a mere lad, in exchange for so many shillings the murderous and cowardly revolver?

PARIS DAY BY DAY.

[BY SPECIAL WIRE.]

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

PARIS, SUNDAY NIGHT.

Although the brilliant sunshine of this morning was succeeded this afternoon by clouds and gloom, Parisians have enjoyed some compensation to-day for the persistent rain of Thursday, which utterly spoilt one of their few public holidays. In spite of the threatening weather this afternoon the population turned out en masse to see and be seen. The races; the departure of another detachment of balloons from the Place du Carrousel, which kept hosts of loungers on the Boulevards well employed for some time; and sundry other entertainments, outdoor and in, made up a promising programme, of which thousands availed themselves. Paris has resumed her sway over her subjects. People now take their pleasure within the limits of the Fortifications and the Bois, and among the last celebrities who have returned to their town-houses may be mentioned M. Alexandre Dumas fils and M. Sardou. Rain towards nightfall rather marred the remainder of to-day's enjoyments.

There has been so much talk here of the so-called insidious policy adopted by the King of the Belgians, that the fact that his Majesty has just determined on conferring on M. Carnot the Grand Cordon of the Order of Leopold ought to produce a favourable impression. This is, to the best of my belief, the first compliment of the kind which the President of the Republic has received from a foreign State, and it can hardly fail to be noticed that if the King of the Belgians had been bound to certain other Powers in the manner described by some of the critics of his Government, he would not have taken the lead in presenting a decoration to M. Carnot.

M. Gragnon, the Head of the Criminal Department, has just given a positive contradiction to an assertion made this morning that he had been entrusted by M. Floquet with the tremendous task of ascertaining the precise strength of General Boulanger's party throughout the length and breadth of France. He says that he was never asked to undertake such a census, but he nevertheless adds the decidedly noteworthy statement that henceforth the General can only hope for support from a coalition of the enemies of the Republic, as the Republican minority which voted for him now regrets its mistake. Meanwhile Moderates and Radicals are again declaring that the Duc d'Aumale energetically condemns the attitude assumed by the Comte de Paris towards the movement, and has spoken very frankly to his nephew on the subject. There is a talk of a split in the Royalist ranks. It is clear that the Comte de Paris had been ill-advised from the first, and that if General Boulanger was ever inclined to play the part of a Monk, which was by no means proven, it would be for the benefit of the Imperialists. Meanwhile the Comte de Paris has only estranged those Moderate Republicans who, in a dangerous crisis, might have rallied to him. Now it is whispered that, if he persists, a goodly section of his followers may join the Moderates.

Yesterday, in the Church of the English Passionists in Paris, a Mass was offered up for the souls of the Pontifical Zouaves who were killed in the Battle of Mentana. There were about eighty ex-Pontifical Zouaves present at the service. The celebrant was the Father-superior of the Passionist House in Paris, the Rev. Michael Watts Russel, whose brother, Mr. Julian Watts Russel, was one of the first of the Pope's soldiers to fall on the field of Mentana.

M. Ferdinand de Lesseps presided this afternoon over the meeting of the Topographical Society, held at the Sorbonne, at which medals were distributed, and some interesting addresses delivered. Especially noteworthy was a paper sent by M. Burdo, the African explorer, who, being a great admirer of M. Savorgnan de Brazza, contrasted his work with that of Stanley, somewhat to the disadvantage of the latter. He described M. de Brazza as the worthy pioneer of French civilisation, whereas Stanley was bent on material conquest. We have heard much this sort of thing before—at least, in Paris—but the striking part of M. Burdo's lecture was that in which he argued that Stanley must be alive. He felt convinced that at the present moment he was concocting plans with Emin Pasha for the realisation of "his programme of conquest." Bloodshed would be the result; and how different was this from the pacific triumphs attained by M. de Brazza and his fellow-toilers. This diatribe, however, will hardly interest your readers. The main point is that M. Burdo, who is no friend of Stanley, utterly refused to believe that he had come to any harm. Here is another valuable opinion in support of the theory that Stanley is well and active.

General De Miribel's reception of the Civil and Military authorities at Nancy has been fertile in untoward incidents of various kinds. People are still awaiting patiently the publication of the official text of the declarations of the commander of the Sixth Army-Corps which have attracted so much attention in different quarters; but, in the meantime, a sensation has been produced by the announcement of the dismissal of M. Schnerb from the post of Prefect of the Department of the Meurthe et Moselle, which he had held for some years. It was at the unlucky reception above referred to that the affair occurred which has just brought disgrace on an official who had discharged duties demanding exceptional tact and discretion to the satisfaction of a series of Cabinets. A fight about precedence has led to the removal of M. Schnerb. The Prefect insisted on attending in the company of his Councillors, giving them the pas over the President and members of the Nancy Court of Appeal, who as a matter of fact come far before them in the order of precedence. Hot words were exchanged in the ante-chamber between M. Schnerb and the President. M. Serre, the President, remonstrated, appealing to the Decree of Messidor, which still holds good in such questions; but, if the gossips are to be believed, M. Schnerb retorted that he did not care a straw for the Decree of Messidor. He had been twelve years a Prefect and had never taken the trouble to read it. "But you had plenty of leisure to do so," replied M. Serre, whereupon the Prefect is reported to have indulged in the characteristic, but decidedly unofficial, exclamation of Zut! Besides expressing his contempt for the whole thing in anything but refined language, he is further said to have flourished his hat repeatedly in the face of the amazed President. Making every allowance for the playful exaggeration which gossips will now and then practise, it seems pretty clear that there was a lively scene. At the Cabinet-Council held yesterday it was determined that M. Schnerb should be removed from his post at Nancy, and it has just been settled that he will be replaced by M. Glaize, the Prefect of Nantes, to which town he will himself be sent.

One thousand pounds in notes and securities worth £4,000 have been stolen in a most daring manner from a bank in the Rue du Louvre. It appears that the watchman of the bank—a retired gendarme—had been ailing on Friday night, and instead of remaining at his post went home to bed. The thieves were evidently well aware of this, and had well-concerted their plans. The bankers are MM. Reverchon and Bathellier, and the coupons stolen were numbered in writing from 2,337 up to 2,875.

Claims are fast coming into the postal authorities at the Rue de Grenelle relative to the robbery of mails which took place the other day in Berlin. MM. Cahen d'Anvers and Co., bankers, Paris, first gave the alarm. The property stolen also comprised many valuable missives from Havre, Bordeaux, Lyons, and Marseilles. It is also probable that many English letters were stolen, as the Paris mail takes up the London service at Verviers. The French-postal authorities only received notice of the robbery on Oct. 28 last, that is to say, after MM. Cahen d'Anvers and Co. had heard from their Berlin agents that the Italian scrip sent to the Prussian capital by these bankers in view of the usual monthly settlement had never reached its destination.

Prado's trial is set down for to-morrow, but it is hinted mysteriously to-day that it may yet be adjourned, not by reason of the unlawful publication of the Indictment in a newspaper or of the absence of some important witnesses who are expected from Spain, but because some exceedingly scandalous revelations have been made either about the principal accused or in reference to the case in general. The public, however, have already discounted many of the sensational effects of the trial beforehand, owing to the copious extracts from the Indictment which have seen the light, and the details furnished to certain newspapers by persons connected with the case. The excitement, however, to see Prado and those accused with him, as well as the French and Spanish witnesses, is intense, and letters have poured in upon the Judges in thousands from persons of all classes of Society who are desirous of having a place in the Assize-court of the Seine. Prado, in fact, attracts more attention than did the notorious Pranzini, for his career has been far more garish and romantic than that of the Italian adventurer and assassin. Nevertheless public curiosity will receive a check should the trial come off to-morrow, for the Bar, the witnesses, who are more than fifty in number, and the accused persons will occupy the whole space in front of the bench. The evidence of Eugénie Forestier is, as has already been explained, the most damning against the accused murderer. Eugénie is not, as has been asserted, an elderly person, like the famous Madame Sabatier, who was the mainstay as well as the mistress of the murderer Pranzini. She is only twenty-seven years old, and is still, despite her fast life and her long detention in prison, a fine woman. She comes from Boulogne-sur-Mer, and left her husband in 1885 in order to follow the fortunes of the Count Linska de Castillon, alias Haro, alias Prado. She was madly in love with the dashing Iberian, and was ready to go through fire and water for him. On the night of the murder of Marie Aguétant Eugénie says that Prado came home after twelve and remarked that people were talking on the Boulevards about a woman of the Eden Theatre whose throat had been cut. This he maintained, although the murder was not discovered until three o'clock the next morning. On the morrow Eugénie saw Prado washing blood off his hands and burning his shirt-wrists and boots. She had given him £20 just before the murder and some of that money, it is supposed, Prado intended to spend with Marie Aguétant. Eugénie also says that Prado actually told her how he murdered Aguétant. The two had gone home together to the Rue Caumartin, and as the woman stood with her back turned towards Prado he seized her by the chignon and cut her throat from ear to ear with one sweep of a razor. He then took her earrings, bracelets, rings, and money and escaped. After the evidence of Forestier the most important is that of Jose Garcia Ximenes, a Spaniard, who informed the police where the jewels had been sold. M. Guillot, in searching for clues in Madrid, came upon an old curiosity shop in the Ciudad-Rodrigo Quarter, in which the jewels had been sold. The woman, who owned the place, had also a photograph of Prado, which the pseudo Count Linska de Castillon had given to her daughter Purita. Such are some of the details of this most extraordinary case, which is now about to be sifted from beginning to end.

Yesterday morning the dead body of a man who had been foully murdered was found lying near the railway line which runs through the Wood of Chantilly. The man's linen was marked "A. G.," and in his pocket were found a pickled-herring wrapped up in a torn sheet of the Times, an envelope addressed Mr. George Lee, 23, Mornington-crescent, London; another addressed to Mr. Bernard, Nice; and a French and English dictionary. There are no other indications as to the identity of the murdered person, but he is believed by some to be a Belgian and an itinerant vendor of jewellery, and that plunder was the motive of the terrible deed. The victim's throat was cut; his head and jaws were battered in; his face was hacked to pieces with a knife, and the murderer or murderers had dragged the body to the railway line, for the purpose of leading to the supposition that suicide had been committed. One of the legs of the victim had been cut off by a passing train. Chantilly is in a state of great excitement, as a murder has not taken place in the Forest for thirty years. Suspicion has fallen on some of the low sharpers who infest the racecourses, and it is presumed that the deceased was followed and dogged through the Wood by two of these extremely dangerous characters.

There was a cause célèbre at Privas on Friday. The leading Municipal authorities of La Voulte were prosecuted by General Boulanger on the charge of having tampered with some of the voting tickets during the Ardèche election. It was affirmed that similar abuses had occurred at twenty-six other places, but that the General contented himself with taking action against the bureau formed at La Voulte. Damages were laid at only 1f, the object being simply to prove that there had been foul play. The court was crammed, as a matter of course, and a number of witnesses were examined. The chief evidence for the plaintiff was given by a café keeper named Leymerie, who declared that, having noticed something strange when he recorded his vote, he posted himself at one of the windows of his house commanding a view of the room where the electoral proceedings were being carried on. His suspicions were amply confirmed. One of the assessors, turning his back to the public, sorted the voting tickets, tore some up, and put others in the urn. Witness then asked several persons to join him at his coign of vantage, and so indignant were they at what they saw that they would, at once, have drawn up a protest had he not begged them to refrain from doing so, as his business might suffer. For the defence, however, it was urged that the window of the room in which the votes were taken was closed all the day, and that it was utterly impossible to see from the café what was going on within. Incidentally an old wood-ranger accused Leymerie during the trial of having killed his daughter, whose body had been found in the Rhône. Deputy Laguerre delivered a lively political address for the prosecution, in which he declared, inter alia, that the General's great aim was to rid France of the band by which she was exploited, while Maître Jamais, for the defence, spoke ironically of the allies and protégés of the Empire. The country, would, however, emerge victorious from the agitation raised by a mutinous soldier, for when the day of the great struggle came the Boulangists would be confronted by a regular army of Republicans, over whose bodies they must pass if they would succeed in their work of destruction. These addresses, of course, were much enjoyed by the audience, who cheered vociferously. The remainder of the proceedings were then postponed for a week.

M. Edouard Colonne, one of the most popular musical conductors in Paris, began his attractive Sunday Concerts for the Winter this afternoon, in the Châtelet Theatre, under the most brilliant auspices. The house was crowded from the parterre to the roof, and nearly every number on the programme was rapturously applauded. This is particularly to be noted, because M. Colonne had arranged a judicious selection of both German and French music, among the numbers being the Prelude to Lohengrin and the Infernal Galop of the Walkyries. Not a hiss was heard as Wagner's resonant strains ceased; on the contrary, stentorian bravos rolled down from the galleries as the musicians concluded the Prelude to Lohengrin. Last year there were demonstrations at the concerts given by M. Lamouroux during the performance of Wagnerian music, and it is often feared that M. Colonne's musical entertainments—taking place as they do in one of the most effervescing localities in Paris—may lead to similar absurd exhibitions of bad temper and misplaced patriotism. Luckily, however, it is at last becoming possible to hear selections from the musical magician of Bayreuth in peace and comfort, and it is to be hoped that this will induce the directors of the Sunday Concerts to be more liberal in their allowances as regards the famous composer of the Tetralogy. Among the lighter numbers on M. Colonne's programme this afternoon was the Overture to Berlioz's Benvenuto Cellini, a magnificent work, which was produced at the Paris Opéra in September, 1838, but much to the disgust not only of the composer, but of Paganini, who heard it, did not succeed. Haydn's Symphony in G—the Oxford Symphony—came next, and the audience heartily applauded the superb largo movement and the inspiriting finale, which was boisterously, but unsuccessfully, encored. M. Colonne intends to go, by degrees, through the most representative of the compositions of the great Master, and his first venture has certainly been crowned with the success that it deserves. The concert concluded with the Overture to Lalo's Roi d'Ys and Selections from Benjamin Godard's opera, Jocelyn, which was produced last February in Brussels, and is now in the repertory of the new Théâtre Lyrique National of Paris.

The popularity of the Auteuil Steeplechases was again asserted to-day, for crowds flocked to the racecourse. The following were the results: Prix des Cascades—First, Altesse; second, Chérubin; third, Lord Ladour. Won by two lengths; the same distance between the second and third horses. Prix Firino—First, Montgeroult; second, Fétiche; third, Précieuse. Won by a length; Précieuse a bad third. Prix Borely—First, Minuit; second, Newmarket. Won by three lengths. Prix Montfort—First, Anarchiste; second, Tic Tac; third, Héron. Won by three-quarters of a length; three lengths between the second and third horses. Prix Diane—First, L'Étourdi; second, Haras du Pin. Won by a length and a half.

On the Bourse yesterday the last quotations were: Three per Cents., 82f 57½c (no change); Four and a Half per Cents., 104f 55c (no change); Italians, 96f 80c (a fall of 5c); Turks, 15f 87½c (a rise of 15c); Spanish Exteriors, 73f 35c; Egyptian Unified, 425f; and ditto Preference, 524f 37c. Suez Canal shares closed at 2,230f (for the account), and Rio Tinto at 650f. Home Funds were dull, and the settlement of foreign stocks was, as a rule, far from brilliant. Italians, Russians, Spanish Exteriors, and Portuguese were weak. On the Petite Bourse last evening the closing prices were: Three per Cents, 82f 56c; Turks, 15f 97c; Spanish Exteriors, 73f 27-32c; Egyptian Unified, 425f 62c; Ottoman Bank, 539f 37c; and Rio Tinto, 658f.

THE ACCIDENT TO THE CZAR'S TRAIN.

THEIR MAJESTIES INJURED.

[TELEGRAM FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

VIENNA, Nov. 4.

The opinion seems to be well-established amongst technical authorities that the railway accident to which the Czar was so nearly falling a victim was caused by the springing of a mine—probably of dynamite. The Kursk-Kharkoff railroad is notoriously badly-constructed, and it is true that in Russia there are more than 300 railway accidents a year; but then that part of the line along which his Majesty was to travel had been, as usual, inspected minutely, and the Imperial train itself was preceded by a pilot-train of approximately the same length and weight as the one conveying the Czar.

The Russian official versions are considered here to be wholly untrustworthy. The accident occurred on the 29th ult., and it was only yesterday that the Official Gazette announced that both the Czar and the Czarina had sustained slight injuries.

According to a new version current here to-day, the train was travelling at a speed of forty versts, an hour when the Czar gave orders that, as over an hour had been lost on the way, the speed should be increased. It is said that his Majesty was warned this could not be done without danger, but that he insisted upon it, and that the train was then made to go at sixty versts an hour, and was running at that speed when the accident happened. It is, however, extremely improbable that the Czar, who was travelling with the Czarina, would have wittingly incurred the risk of a disaster after due warning from the railway officials. The train was provided with the Westinghouse break and other safety appliances. Moreover, there is substantial evidence for concluding that it must have been going at a remarkably reasonable pace. It left Sebastopol last Sunday at half-past four. The accident occurred the next day at twelve, after a distance of 666 versts had been covered. The average speed can therefore have been no more than thirty-five versts an hour. Under such circumstances the comparatively large number of killed and injured tends materially to fortify the suspicion that dynamite and not negligence was the cause of the accident.

Trustworthy accounts received here say that the tidings of the Czar's narrow escape caused a fearful panic in Russia, and well it might. The Russian people attach little or no value to official statements, and from the moment the news first transpired they were fully persuaded that the accident to the Imperial train was the result of a plot to take the Czar's life. Its success would have been attended with terrible consequences, not the worst of which would have been a prolonged period of anarchy.

[REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 3.

The Official Messenger this morning states that in the accident to the Imperal train at Borki the Czar was injured on the foot, and the Czarina on the hand; but that this did not prevent their Majesties from going about and attending to those who had received more serious injuries.

Most of the Imperial suite received contusions of a more or less severe character.

Of the attendants, 21 were killed and 37 seriously injured, one of the latter having since died.

With regard to the question of the cause of the accident, the official journal states that the Czar picked up a piece of a rotten sleeper at the spot where the train ran off the line, and handed it to an officer of Gendarmery to be produced at the official investigation.

Passengers who were in the Imperial train at Borki, and who have returned here, are unanimous in confirming the official description of the catastrophe as an accident. They regard it as due to the defective condition of the permanent way.

It is thought probable that Admiral Possiet, the Minister of Ways and Communications, and M. Saloff, the Chief of the Department of Railways, will resign their posts in consequence of the recent accident to the Imperial train.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 4.

The Czar and Czarina returned here to-day, and were received at the railway station by the principal civil and military authorities and numerous deputations. While driving to the Palace their Majesties were enthusiastically cheered by the vast crowd assembled on their passage. The streets were gaily decorated with flags, the route of the Imperial cortège being lined by troops and deputations from the schools.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT.

After a recess of twelve weeks, the two Houses of Parliament will reassemble to-morrow—the Commons at three o'clock and the Lords at a quarter-past four. No business has been set down for consideration in the Upper House at its first sitting, but there is some expectation that the Marquis of Salisbury will make a brief statement as to the dismissal of Lord Sackville as British Minister at Washington.

The only business appointed for transaction in the House of Peers during the present week is the second reading, which will be moved by the Earl of Onslow on Thursday, of the Government bill for the regulation of the sea fisheries of England. This measure has been passed by the House of Commons, after reference to the Grand Committee on Trade, and no doubt is entertained that it will be added to the legislative achievements of the Session.

At the sitting of the House of Commons to-morrow two members elected during the recess will be entitled to take their seats—viz., Mr. W. H. Cross for the West Derby Division of Liverpool, in the room of Lord Claud Hamilton, resigned, and Mr. Pritchard Morgan for Merthyr Tydfil, in succession to Mr. Henry Richard, deceased. A new writ, it is understood, will be moved for for the borough of Dewsbury consequent on the resignation of Mr. Serjeant Simon, who has represented that constituency for twenty years. There is at the moment only one vacant seat, that, namely, for the Universities of Edinburgh and Aberdeen, whose late representative, Mr. Macdonald, Lord Advocate of Scotland, has been appointed a Judge of the Court of Session. He is succeeded as Lord Advocate by Mr. J. P. B. Robertson, who in turn has been succeeded as Solicitor-General by Mr. Stormonth Darling, who is the Conservative candidate for the vacant seat for the Universities.

Formal communications will be made to the House of Commons to-morrow, by the Speaker, as to sentences of imprisonment passed on Irish members of Parliament during the recess.

There is every reason to anticipate that the proceedings in Parliament during the early days of the Autumn Session will take a quiet business-like course. Mr. Gladstone and other prominent leaders of the Opposition will be absent, and the Irish and Scotch members are not expected to present themselves in anything like force until next Monday, arrangements having been entered into, prior to the adjournment in August, that no Irish or Scotch business should be brought forward this week.

Ministers hope to make rapid progress this week with the business of Supply, which will be at once pressed on the attention of the House. The votes yet to be obtained number in all 135, namely, seventeen for the army, nine for the navy, five for the revenue departments, and 104 for the civil services. Upon several of these estimates important debates are likely to arise. The question of the administration of the metropolitan police will be debated on the vote of £1,500, which is to be opposed by Mr. Stuart, for the salary of Sir Charles Warren; and on the vote of £7,000 for the salary of the Attorney-General, Mr. Philip Stanhope will take the opinion of the House as to the propriety of the chief law officer of the Crown appearing as counsel before the Parnell Commission.

Provisionally the Excise Duties (Local Purposes) Bill has been put down for second reading in the House of Commons on Thursday, but it is thought likely that the stage will be postponed until next week, in order to secure a larger attendance of members. The Opposition leaders will issue an urgent whip in support of Mr. Causton's amendment condemning the proposed van and wheel tax as a return to the policy of imposts on locomotion, and as calculated to inflict a serious and unnecessary check upon trade and employment.

Besides the Excise Duties Bill the Government hope to pass the Scotch Universities Bill, the Tithe Rent-charge Bills, the Employers' Liability Bill, and the Irish Land Commission Bill. Other Ministerial measures which are still before the House, but the prospects of which are doubtful, include the Board of Agriculture Bill, the Weights and Measures Bill, the Criminal Evidence Bill, the Bann, Barrow, and Shannon Drainage Bills, the Solicitors' Bill, the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Bill, the East India Officers Bill, the High Courts in India Bill, the Burgh Police and Health (Scotland) Bill, the Suffragans Nomination Bill, the Presumption of Life (Scotland) Bill, the Registration of Assurances (Ireland) Bill, and the Augmentations of Benefices Act Amendment Bill.

ICEBOUND WHALERS.—According to a cable message received from Lloyd's agents at San Francisco, the thirteen whalers which were icebound off the North-West Coast of Alaska safely got away on Oct. 2. The information has been brought by the Thrasher.

ENGLAND IN DANGER.

Parliament reassembles to-morrow. Our national prosperity, our independence, our liberties are all involved if by sea or land the armament of the United Kingdom proves defective. The highest naval and military authorities in this country have declared that most serious deficiencies do exist. Foreign experts also have with satisfaction proclaimed that such is the fact. The French admiral responsible for the efficiency of the fleet of his country openly stated, of late, that in numbers and equipment it was fully equal to our own. Our insular position, together with our vast Colonial and foreign dependencies, imperatively demand, as a measure of safety, that at sea Great Britain's warships should be superior to the combined fleets of any two European Powers. The Commander-in-Chief, the Adjutant-General, and scores of military officers have sought to awaken attention to the ineffective condition of the army in numbers, organisation, and equipment. The Daily Telegraph months ago carefully enumerated what were the lowest immediate requirements to put the army and navy into something like a state of preparedness. Our figures, which were held by non-experts to be extravagant, are far below those now given by eminent authorities, and are even admitted by officials to be moderate and necessary. Since we emphasised, day after day, the urgent necessity for safeguarding the Realm, the speeches of Mr. W. H. Smith and Mr. Stanhope have shown that our words took effect. But now that legislation is recommencing, we feel it our duty once more to designate the particulars in which the vast interests of the Empire lie at peril, and where prompt and bold reinforcement is absolutely needed. It is in no spirit of hostility to the Government, but rather in order to aid them in doing their best to render the Empire safe, which to-day it is not, that we here repeat, on the eve of the assembling of Parliament, the chief points of the demands which we have previously made towards such an object.

In numbers, speed, guns, and armour our fleet is sadly inefficient. More vessels of all classes are needed—ironclads, cruisers, torpedo boats, transports, &c. Better cannon and small arms are required. Many vessels are still only equipped with obsolete muzzle-loaders, and the gun mountings and machinery of scores of others are defective and antiquated.

Our own is the only European navy where the sailors and marines have no magazine rifle. The speed and armour of the best Italian and French ships surpass that of our fleet, just as their guns excel ours in power and rapidity of fire.

Lord Alcester, Admirals Symonds and Hornby—than whom there are no more capable officers and public servants—unite in asserting "that our navy, in order to discharge its duties in a war with France alone, should be almost three times as strong, particularly in cruisers, as at present."

Admiral Hornby, who is justly regarded in his profession as the foremost naval tactician of the day, says: "On a moderate estimate we ought to have for the Mediterranean thirty-three ironclads, for the Channel and Brest sixteen, for the Downs ten—total, fifty-nine." That is, thirty new ironclads of the best description are yet required "for our proper complement." He further says we need 200 more fast cruisers and a considerable number of torpedo-catchers and torpedo-boats. Admiral Lord Alcester and Sir Thomas Symonds substantially coincide in that view, the latter characterising our present naval condition as "a truly awful state of things."

The Daily Telegraph only asked for five more ironclads and 120 cruisers as a beginning. But it is not alone our dangerous want of ships, modern guns, and armour against which we have publicly protested. We have ships which have stood waiting for over a year without guns; vessels so badly designed or stupidly altered that the little armour they carry is useless; ships with insufficient gear, coaling capacity, breathing space for the crews, and storage accommodation; while the service is short-handed to the extent of nearly 10,000 men.

Let but our designers and shipbuilders have a reasonable freedom in their work, and a score of British firms will gladly stipulate to turn out within the next eighteen months stronger, faster, and better ironclads and cruisers than any of which our country can boast to-day. Official obstruction or incompetence has tolerated that this, the greatest shipbuilding and manufacturing country in the world, is being outstripped by such nations as France, Germany, and even Italy, in the production of war vessels, war material, cannon, rifles, shot, and explosives.

As of the navy so of the army. Organisation, drill, equipment, are all lamentably behind the age. Schemes have been drawn on War Office paper for nearly a score of years for the complete organisation of from two to eight mobile army corps. To-day there is not even one army corps ready to take the field with all the necessary modern impedimenta. We have no smokeless gunpowder, no melinite shells, no magazine rifle ready to place in the hands of our troops, for it is only "being made." Neither is there a supply of modern breechloaders, machine guns, transport, and cavalry horses for the men.

Lord Wolseley has said of the drill: "The British soldier is taught complicated movements of very little use in war, but very pretty in Hyde Park and amusing to nurserymaids." Sir Frederick Roberts and Sir Donald Stewart have spoken in the same vein.

Invisible forts, disappearing cannon, quick-firing guns, machine guns, barracks, and many more things are urgently required ere England can be said to be efficiently protected against invasion. Higher training in accuracy of fire, and a better and smaller unit than the battalion are among the absolutely necessary things which should be seen to at once.

Money will be needed, but a better standard of efficiency in all the departments will make the added cost comparatively small, and only temporary. Regarded from the point of view of England's danger and risk, any possible outlay to ensure against disastrous war would be a bagatelle.

There must be an end for evermore to official obstruction, which positively drives inventors and inventions from our shores, only to see us, years after, woo them back at vast expense, and after grave hazard has been run. Such was the case with ironclads, steel and breechloading cannon, small arms, gunpowder, high explosives, projectiles, and many more warlike inventions. When all the rest of Europe had secured those modern appliances, forced by public sentiment our authorities at length, in a perfunctory way, began to build ironclads and torpedo-boats, and to make steel guns, breechloading rifles, cocoa gunpowder, melinite, and Ferminy shells.

We need a million and a half of magazine rifles, and have not yet enough for two battalions. The "worst artillery gun in Europe" requires to be replaced by 2,000 new 12-pounder steel breech-loading guns. Over 1,000 heavier guns are wanted for forts, ports, and foreign stations, and other uses. A like number of machine and quick-firing guns are also indispensable for the navy as well as the army.

If things are allowed to jog on in the old way we shall spend five to ten times more money than is necessary, and our re-armament will not be completed within a decade. So it has always been in the past. New methods of manufacture are required, and the Royal Commission and Lord Wolseley have both recommended that at least two-thirds of the Government work should be done by private firms. This also, indeed, is beginning to be done, but other manufacturers should be called in to make the heavier ordnance, else it will be five years before the existing fleet is rearmed with modern cannon. The forgers of the huge steel shafting used in the great ocean liners could easily and speedily make hundreds of big guns in the rough, leaving to the more expert the task of smooth-boring, rifling, and breech-block finishing.

As a business people let our affairs be guided in a business-like spirit. Then in less than twenty months the United Kingdom can be put in such a condition of defence that no risk or threat of war or invasion can paralyse our trade, seriously injure our commerce, raise food-stuffs to starvation prices, or diminish the glory of our mighty Empire. At present, we repeat emphatically to the Imperial Parliament, which is now re-assembling, that "England is in danger!"

PAUPER VERSUS FREE LABOUR.—The Local Government Board have just issued a circular in which they say that representations have been made to them that injury has been caused to poor persons who earn their living by wood-chopping by reason of the competition which they have to encounter from the labour of workhouse inmates, who are largely employed in metropolitan unions in the manufacture of firewood. The Board accordingly give directions to the guardians that the employment of pauper labour in this industry on a large scale shall be discontinued, the use of machinery avoided, and the full market value of the firewood demanded, so that the independent producers should not be subjected to unfair competition.

THE NAVY.—Mr. Joseph Scott has been awarded the Greenwich Hospital pension of £35 a year for chief gunners, vice the late Mr. J. Roberts, V.C.; and Mr. James Browning the boatswains' Greenwich Hospital pension of £35 a year, in the room of the late Mr. J. R. Borlase. At the Admiralty, on Saturday, the following appointments were announced: Naval Instructor—Alfred John Parish, to the Britannia (to date 3rd inst.). Midshipmen—Reginald Yorke Tyrwhitt, Richard Webb, Raymond Andrew Nugent, and Alexander Keith Jones, to the Calypso (all to date 14th inst.); Ernest Kindersley Loring, to the Active (to date 7th inst.); Arthur Demetrius Katenakis, and Alun Wyldbore R. Smith, to the Voiage (to date 14th inst.). Gunner—Joseph Rowe, to the Brisk (to date 3rd inst.). Boatswains—Morgan Murphy, to the Asia; William Lloyd, to the Mistletoe (to date 24th inst.).

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGE.

On Saturday afternoon, at St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, was solemnised the marriage of Major-General Sir Hy. Ewart, K.C.B., Equerry to the Queen, and the Hon. Evelyn Clementina Heathcote-Drummond-Willoughby, eldest daughter of Lord and Lady Aveland. At noon the church was filled with the wedding party and relatives and friends. Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck, the Duke of Teck, and Princess Victoria were among the congregation. The bridegroom was attended by Lord Henry Vane-Tempest as best man. The six bridesmaids were the Hon. Margaret, Hon. Nina, Hon. Cecilie, Hon. Alice, and Hon. May Adelaide H.-D.-Willoughby, sisters of the bride; and Miss Ewart, niece of the bridegroom. They were dressed alike in white crêpe de nonne trimmed with pale blue moiré and gold embroidery, and wore crêpe hats to match, with cream ostrich feathers. Each wore a diamond-and-sapphire brooch, the bridegroom's gift, and carried a bouquet of white flowers. The bride's youngest brother, the Hon. Peter Robt. H.-D.-Willoughby, was also in attendance in a white satin costume copied from a print of Charles Edward as a child. The bride entered the church a few minutes after twelve o'clock, accompanied by her father, who led her to the altar, and afterwards gave her away. The bride's dress was of rich white satin, trimmed with the finest point de gaze and orange blossoms. She wore a wreath of the same flowers and a tulle veil, fastened with pearl-and-diamond stars. The Rev. H. Montagu Villiers, M.A., Vicar of St. Paul's, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Bentley Brown, M.A., Rector of Pilton and Normanton, Stamford, and Chaplain to Lord Aveland, and the Rev. James Baden-Powell, M.A., Precentor of St. Paul's. The service was fully choral. Afterwards Lord and Lady Aveland welcomed the wedding party at breakfast at their mansion in Belgrave-square. There were present her Royal Highness the Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess, the Duke, and Princess Victoria, of Teck, Count and Countess Karolyi, the Dowager-Marchioness Conyngham and Lady Blanche Conyngham, the Countess of Westmorland, the Countess of Caledon, the Countess of Lonsdale, Isabella Countess of Wilton, Julia Countess of Jersey and Mr. Brandling, Lord Dorchester, Lord Alcester, Lady Churchill, Lady Colville and Hon. Blanche Colville, Lord Henry Vane-Tempest, &c. Shortly before two o'clock Sir Henry and his bride took their departure for Hemworth Hall, Norfolk, for the honeymoon. The bridal presents were numerous, and included, from the Princess Mary Adelaide and the Duke of Teck, a gold fichu brooch, with sapphire centre, and pearl at each end. Amongst Sir Henry's presents he received from the Queen a white marble bust of her Majesty on an alabaster pedestal, with the following inscription: "Presented to Major-General Sir Henry Ewart, K.C.B., on his marriage—From Victoria R.I., 1888." The Prince of Wales presented the General with a silver-gilt mounted cut-glass claret jug, in case. The following members of her Majesty's Household—General Sir M. Biddulph, General H. Lynedoch Gardiner, Colonel the Hon. H. Byng, Admiral Lord F. Kerr, Lord Burghley, Colonel the Hon. C. H. Lindsay, Major Bigge, Colonel Sir G. A. Maude, Colonel the Hon. W. Carington, Major-General Sir J. M'Neill, Major-General Sir J. Cowell, M. Muther, Captain W. Campbell, Colonel Lord E. Pelham-Clinton, Major-General T. Dennehy, General Sir H. Ponsonby, Major-General C. T. du Plat, Dr. Reed, Major Sir Fleetwood Edwards, and Hon. A. G. Yorke—presented the General with two twisted and fluted silver bowls on black stands; and the officers who served with Sir Henry Ewart in the 2nd Life Guards presented him with a silver column lamp.
